WORLD OUTLOOK ALTERS liberal Editor Points to MacDonald's Rise as Evidence of Progress

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1929 by Post Publishing Co.
Washington—Oswald Garrison Villard, intimate friend of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, and editor of the "Nation," a liberal weekly, gave an interview yesterday in which he applauded Secretary of State Kellogg for his recent statement that moral force was the basis of the recent Anglo-American understanding.

"Nothing," said Mr. Villard, "is more amazing and more gratifying than the statements which have come out of the MacDonald visit on the part of the secretary of state, which he declared, 'the understanding which we arrived at was a moral understanding. The influence which we are seeking to exert is a moral influence and not a military one.'"

"Now the astounding thing to me is that this is an admission by the secretary of state, who hitherto has been himself a military man, the commander of an artillery regiment which has active service at the front of the World War and always an ardent advocate of preparedness as the only way of safeguarding a country, at force is played out in international relations. It certainly proves that anything else that has been said, the extent to which the moral disarmament of certain nations has been carried, the day when the world will be marked that the trouble with the world is that they did not know how to get peace, and that he did his best to do it, namely by force, that is what it is."

LEAN TOWARD PACIFISM
The position that Mr. Stimson has taken to occupy with Mr. Hoover exactly the pacifist one. For years he has been preaching that reliance on force was ridiculous. We applauded Calvin Coolidge when he said 'the American Legion in China at no country could arm itself with arms, and if it did, it would insure that it was attacked.' For holding this position the pacifists have been abused, ridiculed, and put into prison. Hence their thank-

EXAS GUINAN LOSES $105,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Los Angeles—(AP)—Texas Guinan, club character, lost her suit for $105,000 damages against the Los Angeles Railway company yesterday.

The company contended it was not responsible for damage caused by one of its trucks which collided with Guinan's automobile and as a result caused her to be injured, and it was being used by the cause to take a friend home at the time. It also denied the plaintiff earned $5,000 a week, as she testified in her complaint.

Texas sued for $50,000, designated the loss of a week's salary, and 10,000 additional damages.

ISAGREE OVER ACTION AGAINST DRUGSTORES

Milwaukee—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents disagree with the district attorney on the method of prosecution to be used against 12 drugstores in a recent cleanup here.

W. F. Cunningham, deputy district attorney, intends to ask padlocks against the nuisance law for all the stores.

Levi H. Bancroft, federal district attorney, does not believe such action can be started against all of the stores. He cites several instances in which the proprietors apparently do not know their employees were trying on a bootleg liquor business.

Not lucky—just sensible. He took advantage of the greatest market in the Appleton Community.

French Are Attacked By Moor Force

Oran, Algeria—(AP)—Moorish tribesmen have made another raid on French troops on the south slopes of the Atlas mountains, cutting up a column of the French Foreign legion. Fifty legionnaires and native soldiers were killed and 21 wounded. The tribesmen left many dead on the field.

Another column of the Foreign legion came up in time to beat off the Moors who had descended from the Tafilalet region of Morocco, on the southern slopes of the Atlas range. This is one of the most active disquiet areas.

A French airplane on a scouting flight saw the attack and was able to give directions quickly to the retreating columns. The plane also carried the more seriously wounded of the French troops to the hospital at Oran.

The attack, which occurred yesterday, was the first recorded in some months.

CHAUFFEUR SOUGHT IN $63,000 THEFT

Armored Truck Driver Is Accused of Taking Payroll
He Was "Guarding"

New York—(AP)—A chauffeur was being sought today for driving away an armored truck and looting it of $63,000 in payroll cash.

Raymond H. Gallagher, 27, was left on the driver's seat of the car yesterday while the two guards Edward Roche and Floyd Chase, delivered a package of money at the Chemical National bank at Liberty street and Broadway. When they came out of the bank the car was gone.

Two hours later the car was found two blocks from the bank and a short distance from the Greenwich street station. The strong box inside had been opened and was empty.

Officials of the Brinks express company, owners of the truck, said Gallagher had a key to the chest.

Shortly after the truck was found a messenger boy delivered a package at the Brinks company office in which were found the payroll envelopes, all empty except one in which there was $500.

Gallagher had been driving for the Brinks company for 15 months at a salary of $125 a month.

FEDERAL DRY AGENTS BOOED IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee—(AP)—It took a police squad to quell the ardent enthusiasm of a crowd that gathered while federal agents were raiding the saloon of Jacob Weisling here last night.

The crowd kept up a continuous banging while the raiders swarmed over the place, finding liquor in several caches. Hundreds of persons surrounded the establishment.

The agents, not because they feared reprisals, but because they believed police would facilitate their work, called for and received a guard.

REVERSE CANADIAN DECISION ON WOMEN

London—(AP)—A woman is a person, the privy council decided today, reversing a decision of the Canadian Supreme court that a woman is not a person and therefore is not qualified to sit in the Canadian senate.

HUGE PROFITS RECORDED BY RUM CONCERN

Books Show $2,000,000
Cleared in 6 Months—Big Sums Spent on Bribes

Detroit—(AP)—Federal indictments against 42 men said to have been involved in two huge liquor syndicates operating out of New York, Detroit and Chicago were returned by a grand jury today. Fifteen of the alleged conspirators already have been arraigned, according to John R. Watkins, district attorney.

New York—(AP)—Entries in a small black account book showing $2,000,000 profits in six months, huge sums paid for bribes, ships and liquor, revealed today the proportions of the syndicate which federal officials charge monopolized liquor smuggling along the Atlantic coast.

The account book was seized with other records at the mansion in Highlands, N. J., headquarters of the ring, when federal and state officers made 32 raids along a 200-mile front in a drive against the syndicate Wednesday.

William J. Calhoun, prohibition administrator for New Jersey, said the little book, about five by ten inches, contained, in addition to notations showing the profits which were divided in ratios of 7 to 23 percent among the members, closely written memoranda of large sums paid to local officers for protection.

Notations showed, he said, that last March the syndicate spent $700,000 in Montreal "for ships, the purchase of liquor and operating expenses."

Calhoun said that seven banks in New Jersey, Manhattan and Brooklyn with which the ring did business, would be called upon to produce their records of the transactions.

James E. Wilkinson, assistant U. S. attorney, declared that the three banks in New Jersey where the smugglers had accounts were obviously aware of the nature of their clients' business. He also denounced lawyers who he charged gave legal advice to the syndicate.

LINKED WITH CAPONE
"It is no secret that this mob of bootleggers is more or less hooked up with the gang of Scarface Al Capone," Wilkinson added.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, in announcing that the three federal districts in Manhattan, Brooklyn and New Jersey would cooperate in the prosecution of the syndicate, said:

"This ring not only was conducting smuggling of contraband on an enormous scale with ramifications in England, Canada and elsewhere but was by practice virtually monopolizing this business of illegal importation."

A score of men taken in the simultaneous raids were free under bail today, the highest being that of Malcolm McMillan, radio operator arrested in the smugglers' station. He was held in $30,000 bond in Trenton, N. J. federal court.

Search is being made for three other men mentioned in the indictments, William and Al Lillian and James Murphy. They are described by authorities as members of the "board of directors" who with four others controlled the operations of the syndicate.

Post-Crescent To Issue Football Extra Saturday

With the 1929 gridiron season in full swing once more, the Post-Crescent will resume publication of its Saturday afternoon football extras tomorrow. The extra will offer detailed accounts of the big games, and will list the scores of the principal games in all sections of the country.

Interest of Wisconsin fans will be centered in the Badger-Notre Dame clash at Soldiers Field, Chicago. Defeated 7 to 0 by Northwestern last Saturday, Wisconsin will attempt a come-back before a crowd that is expected to number close to 100,000.

Lawrence college will open its home season at George A. Whiting athletic field with Beloit furnishing the opposition. This will be the Viking's first Big Four test.

Heading the Fox River Valley conference from an Appleton standpoint will be the Appleton-Manitowoc game at the lake shore city. Descriptive accounts of the Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha, New London and Clintonville battles also will be included.

Other headlines on Saturday's card in the west include Northwestern and Minnesota at Evanston, Michigan and Ohio State at Ann Arbor, Iowa State and Marquette at Milwaukee, Nebraska and Pittsburgh at Lincoln, Iowa and Illinois at Iowa City, Chicago and Ripon at Chicago, and Indiana and Colgate at Bloomington.

Eastern games occupying the spotlight are Cornell and Princeton, Penn and California, and Harvard and Army.

Watch for the pink sheet football extra. It will be on the streets about 6 o'clock, and it will contain more grid information than can be secured through any other agency in the Fox River Valley.

No Charges In Bingham Lobby Quiz

Caraway Won't Ask for Prosecution as Result of Eynanson Employment

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Caraway of the senate lobby committee, said today he had no intention of asking for prosecution in connection any possible violation of law which might be involved through the employment of Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, of an official of the Connecticut Manufacturers association to advise him on tariff matters.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, said he thought there was a question of violation of law involved. He added that without passing judgment he believed this subject would be a matter for committee consideration.

The committee at an executive session today considered employment of counsel, and investigators but decision was withheld.

A notation from the minutes of the Connecticut Manufacturers association approving the assignment of a "representative" to Senator Bingham, to help "protect" Connecticut industries in the tariff bill today was read into the record of the senate lobby committee.

Senator Walsh, after reading the notation asked the witness, Charles L. Eynanson, who the "representative" was.

"I presume myself," he replied. Bingham has testified Eynanson was "loaned" to him by the association to assist him at the time the tariff measure was before the senate finance committee and that this possibly had been a mistake.

RUM SHIP SKIPPER IS INDICTED BY U.S.

Canadian Legation Wants to Know Details Concerning Firing on Shawnee

Washington—(AP)—Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of prohibition, announced today that Captain John MacLeod, of the Canadian ship Shawnee, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on a conspiracy charge in connection with the rum smuggling syndicate uncovered in raids two days ago along the New Jersey coast.

The Canadian legation has asked the state department for a report on the action of a coast guard boat in stopping and firing on the Shawnee on the night of Sept. 11, off New York harbor. MacLeod claimed his ship had been fired on 17 miles off the American coast after he had hoisted a British flag in reply to the challenge of the coast guard boat.

Lowman said MacLeod has not been arrested as a result of the indictment as his vessel escaped the coast guard patrol boats during the raids, because it was outside the 12-mile limit.

He cannot be extradited from Canada as his alleged offense is not an extraditable one under British-American rum smuggling agreements. The assistant secretary characterized the escape of the Shawnee as a disappointment to the prohibition forces, saying the vessel was considered "the main prize."

The indictment against MacLeod charged conspiracy to smuggle liquor into the United States.

MRS. BURGESS GUILTY IN "HEX" MURDER CASE

Kalamazoo, Mich.—(AP)—A jury of 11 men and one woman early today found Mrs. Pearl Burgess, 52, guilty of the murder of Mrs. Edna Fairchild, 76-year-old inmate of an old ladies' home, whom Mrs. Burgess and her husband, Eugene, had admitted beating to death with a lead pipe. "Because she was a witch and had killed a hundred people just by wishing them dead."

The jury was out from 11:20 yesterday morning until 1:37 a. m., today. Mrs. Burgess' sanity was the point on which the jurors were reported to have found difficulty in reaching agreement. The verdict carries with it a life sentence.

MILWAUKEEAN NAMED FOR WEST POINT BERTH

Madison—(AP)—Forrest Sanders, Milwaukee, sergeant Troop A, 105th cavalry, Wisconsin National guard, was nominated today by Governor Kohler to go to the United States Military academy at West Point.

Sanders enlisted in the national guard in 1926. Harold E. Crowley and William E. Stevens, both of La Crosse were named as alternates.

IN PANTAGES' FAVOR

Los Angeles—(AP)—Further medical testimony was given in behalf of the defense today in the trial of Alexander Pantages, theatre multimillionaire, for an alleged assault on Edna E. Fringle, 17-year-old dancer.

SIX BANDITS GET $50,000; SHOOT 2 MEN

Policeman and Bystander Wounded During Holdup
in Indiana

Peru, Ind.—(AP)—The First National bank here was held up and robbed of a sum estimated at $50,000 today, the desperadoes shooting a policeman and a bystander as they escaped. Six men comprised the bandit gang.

Policeman John Deveny was shot in the leg, H. L. Hovenstein, of Michigan City, Ind., also was wounded. Neither was believed to be seriously wounded.

Police Chief Albert Brown said it had not been ascertained definitely how much money the bandits scooped up before they dashed out of the bank. They fled into a rapidly gathering crowd as they entered their automobile, bullets hitting the policemen and Hovenstein.

MAKE EMPLOYEES LIE DOWN
Three of the bandits entered the bank and commanded the 15 employees and several customers to lie down while they ransacked the place. A clerk was made to open the vault and all available currency was taken. Other members of the gang remained in an automobile, on which two machine guns were said to be mounted.

When an employee of the bank sounded the burglar alarm, the police, it was reported, telephoned to inquire what was wrong. Miss Martha Endicott, who works in the bank, was made to reply that everything was all right.

Bank officials later confirmed the report that the amount taken in the robbery was approximately $50,000.

ITALY AND FRANCE TO TRADE VIEWS ON ARMS

Paris—(AP)—Premier Briand of France has agreed to an Italian suggestion for an exchange of views between Italy and France previous to the five-power naval conference which probably will be held in London early next year.

The connector of the Italian embassy visited the French foreign office last night and suggested an exchange of views. At the same time he deposited a memorandum outlining the Italian suggestion.

Before formally accepting the British invitation France announced that she would be willing to have conversations with all the participants in the proposed conference and in line with this Premier Briand has assented to the Italian request.

The French press today was beginning to warn the government against what it viewed as the danger of others putting the onus on France for any possible failure of the London parity. The government, however, is represented as confident that its views on outstanding questions are so clear and well known that this danger is largely imaginary.

JUDGE SIGNS ORDER TO FINE BLACKMER $60,000

Washington—(AP)—Justice S. D. Clegg of the District of Columbia today signed a formal order assessing fines totaling $60,000 against Harry M. Blackmer, former president of the Midwest Oil company.

Counsel for Blackmer noted an appeal from the decision. Blackmer, now in France, failed to appear when called as a government witness in the naval oil reserve cases, and $100,000 in bonds he held in this country were seized under a special statute.

RUSS FLIERS CONTINUE JOURNEY TO NEW YORK

Seattle—(AP)—The Russian aviators took off from Sand Point Naval air base at 9:25 a. m. Pacific time here today on the Seattle Oakland leg of their goodwill flight from Moscow to New York.

Shanghai—(AP)—Advices from the city of Wuhu, in the province of Anhwei, today indicated that some Nationalist government troops had mutinied there this morning but were driven from the city.

Latest reports said that Wuhu was quiet and that all the foreigners there were safe.

It was authoritatively learned that all the foreigners including about 35 Americans evacuated the city and went aboard the Japanese and British gunboats. The foreigners included 70 Japanese and 30 of other nationalities.

Authentic accounts of what took place at Wuhu indicated that the trouble there started when the Nationalist government attempted to disarm a contingent of troops belonging to Feng Chen-Wu, chairman of the Anhui government. Feng had been dismissed by Nanking yesterday because of his doubtful allegiance.

LABOR MOVES TO LIMIT POWER OF INJUNCTION

Toronto—(AP)—A two day debate over organized labor's position on use of court injunctions in industrial struggles terminated today when the American Federation of Labor council voted endorsement of its resolutions committee proposals on the topic.

These call for presentation of a bill to congress which would limit powers of federal courts to issue injunctions in labor matters, and projected further either amendment or repeal of the Sherman and Clayton Anti-trust acts.

Interrupting the injunction debate for the purpose, the federation late yesterday rejected its solid advice of officials now serving, from William Green, president, through a long list of vice presidents to Martin F. Ryan, treasurer, and Frank Morrison, its veteran secretary. Boston was named for the 1930 annual gathering.

Belief In Supreme Being Not Required Of Witness

North Carolina Judge Holds Old Supreme Court Ruling is Obsolete

Concord, N. C.—(AP)—Declaring a state supreme court decision of the past century obsolete, Judge A. M. Stack ruled a person need not believe in a supreme being to be a competent witness in a North Carolina court as the trial of four Gastonia cotton mill employees charged with flogging Sept. 9 of Ben Wells, Communist and self-declared atheist, opened here.

Judge Stack's ruling was in variance with recent holdings of two other state superior court jurists. Testimony of Wells was ruled out by Judge Thomas J. Shaw, superior court judge sitting as a magistrate, in preliminary hearings held in the flogging case.

Appearing against 14 men he had named as members of a mob which he said took him, with C. D. Saylor, and S. M. Lell, Gastonia members of the National Textile Workers union, from Gastonia to a spot near here and flogged him, Wells told Judge Shaw he did not believe in God and was a Communist. With these declarations Judge Shaw held Wells had disqualified himself as a witness.

Seven men of the 14 named as mob members by Wells were held for grand jury action by Judge Shaw. Yesterday the grand jury returned true bills against four of the seven, releasing three.

It indicted A. G. Morfehead, Horace Lane, Dewey Carver and Carl Holloway.

The trial opened immediately after the indictments were returned. A jury was chosen speedily and C. D. Saylor was placed on the stand.

His story of being pulled from his boarding house in Gastonia by a mob and taken with Lell and Wells to a point near here, where he said Wells was beaten.

On cross-examination the defense sought to question Saylor about his connection with the International Labor defense. Judge Stack declared such testimony incompetent, brushing aside the defense's plea that it wished to impeach his testimony through showing he was connected with a Communist organization. Judge Stack delivered his ruling on the competency of testimony by an atheist or Communist in a North Carolina court.

The supreme court decision was declared obsolete through passage of the 14th amendment. The decision was rendered in 1856. It held a witness must believe in a hereafter in which he would be punished if he violated his oath as a witness.

Under Judge Stack's ruling, Wells, if he can be located, will be permitted to testify against his alleged assailants. He was not present as the trial opened and court officers could not find him to serve a subpoena. He was reported to have come to New York.

200 CANS OF FISH PUT INTO RIVERS AND LAKES

Racine—(AP)—Two hundred cans of spawning pike, bass, pickersel, crappie and bluegills were planted today in Brown, Bohner, Eagle and Wind lakes and in the Fox river at Rochester and the Root river here, by members of the Racine and Burlington Isaac Walton league. ## BISHOP OF PEORIA DIES AFTER STROKE

Peoria, Ill.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Edmund M. Dunne, 65, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Peoria, died last night after an illness of less than a week. He was stricken with apoplexy Saturday and sank rapidly. Bishop Dunne had spent 45 years in the priesthood, having been ordained on June 24, 1887.

WAGGONER MOTION TO CHANGE PLEA DENIED

New York—(AP)—A motion by Charles D. Waggoner, banker of Telluride, Colo., that his plea of guilty to charges of mail fraud be changed to not guilty was denied in federal court today.

The motion, unusual in legal procedure, was made before Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman. The court reserved decision on another motion introduced by Waggoner's attorney, Elwood M. Rabenold that the banker's maximum sentence of 15 years be reduced.

Judge Coleman said however that there would be "no practical reduction in any event." He stated that he had written to the federal parole board immediately after imposing sentence on Waggoner, urging parole at the end of five years. Judge Coleman said that if he did reduce the maximum sentence, he still would urge that the banker be held in prison for at least five years.

INSISTS CASH HANDS FALL WAS NOT GIFT

Oil Man Traces Early Friendship With Former Interior Secretary WIFE ALSO IS WITNESS
Testifies Doheny Tore Signature from Note to Safeguard Friend

Washington—(AP)—Edward J. Doheny, oil magnate, went on the witness stand today during the trial of his old friend, Albert B. Fall, whom he is accused of giving a bribe of $100,000.

The oil man, who knew Fall in the west when both were young, showed signs of emotion as he said emphatically that the $100,000 he gave to Fall was simply a loan and he was in tears and his voice shook as he told of conversations with Rear Admiral J. H. Robison, who represented the navy during the oil leases.

He said he never discussed the clause of the Elk Hills-Pearl Harbor contract which gave his company preference to any lands that the government might subsequently decide to lease.

"Referential rights had no meaning to me and never has had," he added.

Doheny told the jury he informed Admiral Robison that he was not interested in the Pearl Harbor contract, adding he consented to bid only after Robison appealed to his patriotism. The naval officer was quoted as saying Robison, of the Pearl Harbor oil lease would go away "with the menace in the east."

WIFE TESTIFIES

Mrs. Carrie Estelle Doheny, wife of testified today Fall's signature had been torn from a note for that amount so the former interior secretary would not be embarrassed if anything happened while she and her husband were en route home.

Wearing a black dress, trimmed in white, she said her husband had told her to keep the signature carefully so it would be available when time came to present the note for payment.

She added she had taken the signature from New York to Los Angeles and put it in a safe deposit box.

Today Mrs. Doheny produced the signature in court. She already had identified the note, Frank Hogan, chief defense counsel, put them together and prevented the complete note to the jury, which examined it carefully.

She was on the stand only a short while before her husband was called. Regarded as the most important witness for the defense, Doheny was said the $100,000 was a "loan to an old friend in need," and not a bribe as charged by the prosecution.

KOHLER INVESTIGATES PENAL CONDITIONS

Madison—(AP)—Governor Kohler will personally visit the state penal institutions to verify reports that have come to him of crowded conditions, he said today, discussing the visit to the State Hospital for the criminally insane by Sen. Walter Polakowski.

This takes into account that no building can be done in the state institutions save by authority of the legislature, but also considers the fact that appropriation was made to the start of a board of control building program to extend over a long term.

Sen. Polakowski told Milwaukee papers of the insane prisoners sleeping in the halls and basement rooms, and quartered in unguarded and unheated lumber and supply rooms. His statement supplemented a recent one by Col. John J. Hannan, president of the board of control, to the same effect. Col. Hannan said today the central hospital was built to accommodate 133 patients, doctors and nurses and that there are now 229 inmates alone. In addition there are 69 criminally insane confined at the Northern hospital, Winnebago, who would be transferred to the proper institution if there were room there.

AIRMAIL PLANE BURNS, HALF OF CARGO SAVED

Elk Creek, Neb.—(AP)—A west-bound airmail plane was destroyed by fire here at 5 o'clock a. m. today. Pilot C. V. Pickup, by a quick landing, saved half the cargo of mail. He was not injured and the plane carried no passengers.

Pickup was over Elk Creek about 4:55 a. m. when he noticed a leaky gasoline line. He made for the emergency landing field here, and was about 150 feet from the ground when the plane caught fire. He circled the field and quickly landed. Pickup was able to save about half the cargo. He refused to state its value or the value of the mail destroyed.

He called division headquarters of the Boeing at Omaha and a relief plane was dispatched. About 12 sacks of mail burned.

WINSTON CHURCHILL
VISITS PRESIDENT

Washington—(AP)—Winston Churchill, former British chancellor of the exchequer, called at the White House today and paid his respects to President Hoover. He was accompanied by attaché of the British embassy where he is a guest during a brief stay in Washington.

Premier Takes Peace Crusade To France, Italy, Japan

WANTS TALKS SIMILAR TO THOSE IN U. S.

MacDonald Expects "Support of Rest of the World" to End Conflicts

Ottawa, (P)—Conversations with France, Italy and Japan, in the same informal manner which characterized his talks with President Hoover, will be Premier Ramsay MacDonald's next step in his crusade for world peace.

He disclosed this last night in an address before the political leaders of the dominion at a dinner at parliament building.

Describing his mission to the United States as merely one of good will with no intention of entering into any agreements, he pointed out there is a world outside the United States and Great Britain and that neither country desired to impose its will on the world outside.

He said pessimistic friends advised against the calling of the five-power naval limitation conference, saying all nations would not accept the invitation.

"But," he said, "I was never pessimistic and I am glad to say that every power that was requested to send representatives there has now replied that it will be happy to be represented. And so the next stage in this dream is the five-power conference, and I go back to London to begin conversations with France, Italy, with Japan, in the same frank and free and open way that has characterized the conversations between the United States and ourselves."

EXPECTS SUPPORT

"And I hope and pray, indeed I believe, that we shall have the support of the rest of the world all the time, and that as a result of these informal conversations, when we shall attempt to understand each other, an agreement will become to some time next spring which will be the biggest and most substantial advance toward world peace which has been known in the history of civilization up to the present time."

Commenting on the speech of Premier Mackenzie King who cited as a world model the Rush-Bagot agreement of 1812 between the United States and Canada establishing naval parity on the Great Lakes, Mr. MacDonald said he would keep the example of that agreement in mind during the coming months.

"There," he said, "we see an agreement with regard to the tonnage of four vessels, with one gun of a certain calibre each. What have I been talking about all these months since I came into office? There is nothing new under the sun, and if the United States want to raise any problems about Canada, any problems about the calibre of guns, could wisdom go higher than this—to direct my thoughts back to this treaty, to bring it up to date, and to suggest to my friend, who is chairman tonight (Premier King) that he renew that treaty with the United States for the next century?"

Mr. MacDonald promised that the president of the five-power naval conference in London next January would be open to all nations of the world.

"We have lifted up the windows of our diplomatic offices," he said. "We have pulled up the blinds, and drawn down the screens." Great Britain, he said, "wants the other nations of the world to know the truth because in the world knowledge is security."

Premier King, in his speech of introduction at the house of lords, said that Canada were "wholeheartedly in sympathy with his peace program and more particularly in his efforts to foster a larger measure of confidence between the United States and Great Britain."

TRY TO SOLVE PROBLEMS AT MILWAUKEE NORMAL

Madison, (P)—The state board of regents of normal schools met in executive session here today to attempt solution of the classroom and teacher-supply problem in Milwaukee State Teachers college.

President Frank E. Baker of the normal, advised E. G. Doudna, secretary of the board of regents, that the school is short at least of 100 instructors and has an enrollment of 1,700 with only school space for 1,400.

Despite the fact that the legislature appropriated $396,000 for a new gymnasium and field house, and hope was expressed that this might be released soon so the building could be erected and the old ones used for classes, Mr. Doudna was not hopeful as the meeting opened that the problem might be solved.

SELL WILL ATTEND PLAY GROUP MEET AT MADISON

MOST HONEST MAN PAYS FINE AFTER CASE IS DISMISSED

Appleton's most honest man has been found.

He is Nick Dresseng, 1102 W. Lawrence-st., who was fined $1 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court yesterday for parking his car on College-ave longer than 30 minutes.

Dresseng appeared in court Wednesday to answer the charges. When he explained to the judge that he didn't think he had parked for more than 30 minutes the case was dismissed.

Thursday Dresseng appeared before the judge and explained that his conscience bothered him. He said that after thinking the matter over very carefully he decided that he had violated the law by parking more than 30 minutes, and he desired to pay his fine.

Under the law a case can be reopened by the judge within 24 hours. The judge took this action and Dresseng paid his fine and went away satisfied.

PROPOSE UNIFORM CHILD LABOR LAWS

Commissoin Would Fix 10-hour Limit for School and Outside Work

Memphis, Tenn., (P)—Children under 14 years of age would be permitted to seek employment only in open air pursuits and ten hours the maximum time boys between 14 and 18 would be allowed to devote each day both to school and in "gainful pursuit." If a uniform child welfare act, approved in substance by the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws, is adopted by state legislatures.

Other provisions would require permits from a state child welfare bureau as a requirement to employment of any child up to the age of 18 with completion of the eighth grade in school as a prerequisite to the issuance of such permits.

The proposed law was back in committee today for minor amendment after lengthy discussion before the conference yesterday.

A committee recommendation that boys between the ages of 12 and 14 not be permitted to sell newspapers on the streets brought two attorneys—General of Alexandria, Va., and their feet in protest. General Melvin, a veteran of the Civil war, declared that the rights of every American boy to sell papers "wherever he pleases."

Judge Caffery told the conference that as a boy he sold papers and that to deny young Americans of today this right might take from the boy only means of livelihood education.

Among other things the bill would forbid boys under 16 working in bowling alleys, pool rooms, the building trades, tobacco factories or in places where machinery is used and accidents liable to occur and those under 8 o'clock p. m. Women under 21 years old not be employed in any capacity that required continuous standing nor about a mine or quarry or in street trades.

SEEK NATIONAL GUARD ENLISTMENT INCREASE

Los Angeles, (P)—A plan to increase strength of the national guard from 177,000 men to 210,000 men engaged the convention of the National Guard association of the United States here today to the exclusion of almost all other business.

The meeting of the organization got underway yesterday with 800 delegates, representing guard units from every state in the Union, present.

Along with the discussion concerning possible increase of the personnel of the national guard in view of the reduction of the regular army, reports from the resolutions committee, convention committee and the committee of audits were to be heard.

Major General Brian H. Wells, deputy chief of staff, and Major General William G. Everson, chief of the militia bureau, were on the speaking program.

BLAME FIREBUG FOR DISASTER AT HOTEL

Pyromaniac Sought by Authorities as Author of West Coast Tragedy

Seattle, (P)—Police today searched the city for a pyromaniac who, they declared, was responsible for the fire which early yesterday destroyed the Fortland hotel here, with a loss of eight lives and the serious injury of several others. The hotel, located on lower First-ave, was patronized by laborers.

Fire Marshal Robert L. Laing said the blaze was the work of a "firebug" who has been operating in this district for several months.

Of the eight dead, six were identified by the coroner last night as John Brink, 29, Lynden, Wash.; Harold George 19, transient, enroute to Los Angeles; James Liddle 56, Seattle; James Mandzik, 47, Seattle; Thomas O'Malley, 31, Seattle; William A. Martin, 54, Seattle.

ARMY ENGINEERS MAY BE EXEMPT AS TROOPS

Washington, (P)—To aid in carrying out the administration's program of unbroken administration of inland and Great Lakes waterways, Secretary Good has proposed legislation to the house military committee to exempt army engineers from duty with combatant troops.

With the recent appointment of Major General Lytle Brown as chief of engineers, President Hoover caused a reorganization of the corps to decentralize authority at Washington and place officers in charge of important projects. Under the program the officers are to be directly responsible for the projects and are to have unbroken administration for a period of years.

Besides General Brown, who has eight years to serve before retirement because of age, three officers who recently have been assigned to important work will be affected. They are Brigadier General Thomas H. Jackson, president of the Mississippi River commission, and who is in charge of flood control and waterway work on the lower Mississippi; Lieutenant Colonel George B. Spaulding, in charge of the development of the upper Mississippi; and Colonel Edward M. Markham, who is to supervise the proposed development of the Great Lakes to the Atlantic waterway.

CLAIM CLOTHES SHOW CHIEF PLOT VICTIM

Prosecution Says Aderholt Was Shot in Back as Result of Conspiracy

Charlotte, N. C., (P)—Arguments that the dead chief's bullet-ridden clothes showed conclusively he was killed by a fellow officer and that there had been a conspiracy of the defendants to kill him were presented by attorneys summoned up the evidence against seven Textile Union members charged with second degree murder for the death of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police.

T. A. Adams, speaking for the defense, said holes in the clothing could have been made only by shots from a sawed off shotgun such as officers had admitted were carried to the Lory mill strikers tent colony the night of June 7 when they went with Aderholt to investigate reports of disorders there. The police chief was wounded fatally by a shot fired from the darkness.

Jake Newell, prosecution attorney, held the clothing before the jury and said the shots in the back showed he had been killed while leaving and as a result of a conspiracy.

In addition to Newell and Adams the jury also heard Clyde Hoey, prosecution attorney, and J. D. McCall, of defense counsel, in arguments yesterday, the first day of summation of evidence.

Two additional speakers from each side and the charge of Judge M. V. Barnhill, presiding, remained when court recessed yesterday before the jury will begin deliberation on the evidence.

LOCAL ATTORNEY GETS $938 DEFAULT JUDGMENT

Roger R. Tuttrup, local attorney, was awarded damages of $938 by a jury in municipal court this morning from Arthur Strel, Chicago. Strel did not appear to defend himself in the suit for damages which grew out of an accident July 4 and a default was granted to Mr. Tuttrup. The jury was out only a few minutes to set the amount of damages due Mr. Tuttrup, who asked $1,000.

It was charged that Strel, driving in a careless and negligent manner on highway 26, crashed into Tuttrup's car. Tuttrup charged his car was damaged to the extent of $500 and that he suffered personal injuries to the same extent.

Elm-st., garage, cost $250; John Falmbach, 1201 W. Winnebago-st., residence and garage, cost $4,000; and William Desor, 137 N. Appleton-st., residence and garage, cost $5,000.

JAPAN FAVORS HOOVER PLAN TO CUT ARMS

Wants Reduction Rather Than Limitation of World's Armaments

Washington, (P)—Full support of President Hoover's announced policy of naval reduction, as contrasted with limitation, was expressed by Japan in accepting the British invitation to the five power conference to be held at London in January.

The Japanese note of acceptance was transmitted to Secretary Stimson by the British foreign office and a copy was delivered by Ambassador Delbort here. The text was made public today by the state department.

In addition, the Japanese government expressed complete willingness to engage in negotiations with Great Britain prior to the conference in order to facilitate the work of the parley itself. The Japanese attitude toward the provisional agreement between the Washington and London governments, the note said, will be communicated to the British foreign office in the course of the discussions to precede the January conference.

The text of the note was as follows:

"I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note dated Oct. 7, informing me of a provisional and informal agreement reached between the prime minister and the American ambassador in London on the subject of naval disarmament, and inviting the Japanese government to participate in a conference which it is proposed to summon in London, to consider the categories of ships not covered by the Washington treaty, and to arrange for and deal with the questions covered by the second paragraph of Article 21 of that treaty."

AGREE ON DATE

"2. Having said before my government the contents of your note under acknowledgment, I am desired to state in reply that the Japanese government are happy to signify their entire concurrence in the desirability of the proposed conference, and are ready to appoint representatives to take part in that conference. The date suggested for the opening of the conference, namely, the beginning of the third week of January, 1930, is also agreeable to my government."

"3. With regard to the four points of principle mentioned in your note as the subject of provisional agreement between the British and American governments, the Japanese government hope to be able to submit their observations in the course of the informal conversations which I have already permitted myself to hold with the British government. They would, however, make use of this occasion to answer you of their cordial support of the principle that the treaty for the renunciation of war, signed at Paris in 1928, should be taken as the starting point for all discussions on disarmament."

"4. In conclusion, I am instructed to express the sincere and earnest hope of the Japanese government that the conference will succeed in the adoption of plans calculated to promote international peace and good will, and to relieve humanity of the heavy burden of armament whether existing or contemplated. It is, merely the limitation, but also the reduction of armament, that all nations should seek to attain."

"5. The Japanese government are further gratified to know of the willingness of the British government to continue informal conversations with me, as hitherto, on many points which may require elucidation. They note that similar discussions conducted in London by the prime minister with the American ambassador during the last three months have cleared the ground for agreement on essential points between the British and American governments, prior to the invitation extended to other naval powers to meet in a conference. My government attach the highest importance to the same procedure being followed by the Japanese and British governments, in order to insure agreement between them on various questions that are to be before the conference. The success of the forthcoming conference no doubt depends in a large measure upon the satisfactory issue of such preliminary discussions, and my government confidentially trust that the informal conversations between the British government and myself on questions of special moment will be carried on and completed before these questions are presented to the conference for final adjustment."

SMITH KEEPS OPEN MIND FOR '32 RACE, NEWSPAPER STATES

New York, (P)—Under the headline, "Smith's Mind Open on Candidacy in 1932 National Race," the New York World today published the following:

"The Democratic presidential nomination in 1932 is not a closed book for Alfred E. Smith."

"Governor," he was asked, "is it true that you will seek to enter the senate in 1934?"

Mr. Smith declined to answer the question for the record.

"Have you determined not to run for president again?"

Mr. Smith did answer that question and this is what he said: "A man never gets anywhere or accomplishes much if he makes his plans too far in advance. I have never made definite plans for the future. I have never gone about it that way. What I have done has sort of come my way. I have never determined matters long in advance. You cannot tell what is going to happen in the future; what may occur in between times; and to count on what you will do at some distant time is, to me, silly."

FACES TWO SUITS; ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Lawyer Near Death from Self-inflicted Bullet in Wife's Apartment

Denver, (P)—Sued for divorce and defendant in an allegation of affections suit, William Bryan Quigley, 30, prominent New York and Denver lawyer, today was in a Denver hospital with little hope of recovery from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

Quigley shot himself yesterday while visiting at the apartment of his estranged wife in an effort to arrange a property settlement and alimony provisions. Quigley told police he was explaining use of the gun to Mrs. Quigley, that she might have protection, when it accidentally exploded, injuring him. Mrs. Quigley told police she had refused to kiss him, turned to carry some dishes to the kitchen, heard two shots and then found him wounded. Police put the case on the blotter as "attempted suicide."

He recently was made defendant in a suit in New York by William Kunkel, wealthy New Yorker, who charged Quigley had alienated the affections of his wife, the former Princess Marie Alimova of Russia. The divorce action by Mrs. Quigley was filed in Denver district court Sept. 28.

Quigley was twice decorated in the World war, and recently was named as one of the outstanding heroes of the University of Nebraska five years ago.

Though Mrs. Quigley said she heard two shots, Quigley had only one bullet wound. The bullet entered his chest, pierced his left lung, narrowly missed his heart and came out at the base of his neck, doctors said.

G. O. P. PLANS FEW CHANGES DOWN SOUTH

Huston Ready to Enter Actively Upon Duties as National Chairman

BY JAMES L. WEST (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, (P)—Little if any change in the general plan for conducting Republican party affairs in the south is likely under the administration of Claudius H. Huston, the newly elected chairman of the national committee who soon will come here to enter actively upon his duties.

Suggestions that the organization set up during the campaign in the south last year be brought into existence again find no favor in administration circles and information now is that the general committee formed this year in a number of states under the direction of President Hoover will be retained.

After the selection of Mr. Huston as chairman of the national committee, reports were current that Horace A. Mann, a Washington, D. C., lawyer, who had charge of the Hoover campaign in the south, would be given direction of the general organization in that section, functioning through general committees to be built up around the formation with the approval of Postmaster General Brown, Walter Newton, administrative assistant to President Hoover, and James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican National committee.

Mr. Mann and Mr. Huston come from the same state, Tennessee; long have been personal friends and with the election of Huston some political observers concluded that Mann would win his controversy with the national committee and the so-called administration patronage organization which declined to approve a plan which he evolved for building a new party organization.

PLAN IN SOUTH

In the reorganization of the party in South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Mississippi, the Hoover administration insisted upon and obtained representation for both the leaders of the Republican organization in the last campaign and of the anti-Smith Democratic forces. Difficulty was experienced in some states, particularly Georgia and Florida, where rumblings still are heard.

Party leaders generally resist any and all proposals for a sort of super one-man control of Republican affairs in the south for a number of reasons, not the least of which is control of the delegation to the national party convention.

They insist that such a super-control plan would place entirely too much power in the hands of a single individual as it would make it possible for him to control a very sizeable block of delegates in the convention and thus be in a position to influence if not actually dictate the action of the convention in matters both of platform declarations and candidates.

BULLETIN
Washington—(P)—Besides selecting Secretary Stimson as head of the American delegation to the London arms conference in January, President Hoover plans to appoint a number of other delegates, including some senators.

Washington—(P)—Secretary Henry L. Stimson, who took a leading part in the recent Anglo-American naval discussion, has been chosen by President Hoover to act as chief American spokesman when these negotiations reach their fruition in the coming London conference.

Possibly, the secretary of state may be the only delegate appointed, but as yet there have been no indications of the president's views on the size of the commission that is to represent the Washington government. There is, however, a strong impression here that no other delegates will be named.

At any rate, whether or not they go as delegates, it is confidently expected that Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, and Rear Admiral Hilary Jones, U. S. N., retired, will be present at London to act as Stimson's chief advisors. Both served as delegates to the unsuccessful tripartite Geneva conference of 1927 and each has been intimately associated with naval discussions since that time.

MAY SEND SENATORS
In view of the fact that a treaty produced by the coming conference would have to be ratified by the senate, it has been suggested that the chief executive may send some members of that body to the naval conference. Such a course was followed by President Harding in appointing delegates to the Washington conference in 1921.

In this connection, the names of Borah of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee; Hale of Maine, chairman of the naval committee; Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and Swanson of Virginia, ranking minority member of the naval committee, have been mentioned.

President Hoover recently called Hale and Swanson to the White House for separate conferences, both on the same day, and it was reported that the possibility of their going to London was discussed at that time.

There has, however, been no official indication from the White House as to Mr. Hoover's views on the question of including members of the senate in the delegation, and that, with the question of determining the size of the commission, apparently has been left for the future.

SLAIN WOMAN'S ESTATE WILL GO TO CHILDREN

New Haven, Conn.—(P)—The will of Mrs. Anna Bryan Ayres, high-salaried executive, who was shot to death Tuesday in a hotel at Wallingford, leaves her estate, valued in excess of $10,000, in equal shares to her three children. The will has been filed in court here.

Grace Bryan of Franklin, Ind., a sister of Mrs. Ayres, is named as guardian of the three children.

Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan, today expressed the opinion that the deaths of Mrs. Ayres and William H. Gaylord, Hartford bookkeeper, were not by mutual agreement, but rather a murder and a suicide engineered by Gaylord. The mutual agreement supposition had been advanced by Medical Examiner J. H. Buffum of Wallingford.

STUDENTS "PEP" UP FOR GRID GAME

Cheers and Songs Will Be Rehearsed at Chapel Meeting Tonight

Collegiate spirit for tomorrow's football game with Beloit college will be drummed up at a Lawrence college "pep" meeting in Memorial chapel this evening. The gathering will be the second of its kind on the Viking campus this season, and will attract students from dormitories, homes and fraternity houses directly after their evening meal.

In preparation for the meeting, Dean Carl J. Waterman of the conservatory, led the student body in a series of Lawrence songs, including the ever-popular "Viking Song," which has been steadily gaining in popularity since its introduction here two years ago. An assortment of cheerleaders will be on hand tonight to lead the blue and white backers in their college cheers, and the songs will be repeated.

With excitement running high on the campus before the first home game of the year, a larger turnout than attended last week's "pep" meeting is expected to be present tonight. Coach and football players are expected to be present, and the gathering will be followed by a regular Friday night "frolic" in the old Alexander gymnasium.

HUGE LOTTERY BROKEN UP BY CLEVELAND COPS

Cleveland—(P)—Confiscating perhaps $200,000 worth of tickets and stubs, police today believed they had broken up a lottery distribution system covering Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois.

The certificates, seized in a raid on two houses at midnight, were on the membership pool of the Cambridge-shire charter sweep, also known as the Canadian-English, to be run Oct. 30. They were issued by the army and navy veterans in Canada, Quebec, and U. S. 33.

Stubs of the tickets that had been sold were to have been shipped to Quebec today, police said, but their confiscation left their purchasers out their money inasmuch as it was necessary to turn the stubs in at the veterans headquarters. Two men were arrested and held for questioning.

SENATE BODY MAY QUESTION LEADER OF TARIFF BUREAU

Expect W. T. Rawleigh Will Testify Before Lobby Probe Committee

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Correspondent of the Post-Crescent)

Washington—W. T. Rawleigh, Freeport, Ill., manufacturer who furnished funds for the tariff survey made by three University of Wisconsin economics professors, will probably be called to testify before the Senate lobby investigating committee.

Senator John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, a member of the sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary committee conducting the investigation, said that Rawleigh would doubtless be called and that he would probably volunteer to appear if he is not subpoenaed.

Rawleigh's name was first brought into the investigation by H. A. Austin, $8,000-a-year lobbyist for the beet sugar interests, in listing the organizations which opposed the proposed increase in the tariff duties on sugar.

"That is the kind of lobby I think the Senator should go after," Austin said in mentioning the Rawleigh Tariff Bureau as one of the opponents of the sugar tariff. The bureau has headquarters in Madison and also has a headquarters in Washington.

STUDIED EACH SCHEDULE.
John R. Commons, professor of economics, E. H. Hibbard, professor of agricultural economics and Selig Perlman, professor of economics, all of the University of Wisconsin, directed the tariff survey and prepared statements on each schedule in the tariff bill as reported by the Ways and Means committee to the House of Representatives. Each statement showed clearly the source of the funds with which the work was done.

This survey was an analysis of each schedule to show whether the present duty is effective (that is, in protecting American producers from foreign competition), whether the proposed duty would be effective, how much the proposed increase would cost the American consumer, how much it would put into the coffers of the American treasury, and how widespread the benefits, if any, of the increase in tariff duties would be.

The only report made by the Wisconsin professors which caused any rumpus among Washington's lobbyists was the sugar report, in which it was stated that the proposed increase in the sugar duties would cost the American farmers some $30,000,000 a year, the public in general around $150,000,000 a year, while it would bring the sugar beet farmers only about $50,000,000 a year.

When this report was published, the sugar interests rushed to President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin to ask if the university sponsored the survey, although it had never been represented that the university initiated or sponsored it in any way. When President Frank said that the university had nothing to do with it, his statement was used by the beet sugar interests and by Senator Reed Smoot of Utah to belittle the investigation.

WASN'T UNIVERSITY WORK

When Senator Smoot made such a statement in the Senate, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, an alumnus of the University of Wisconsin and member of the Senate lobby investigating committee, stated the facts—that the survey had never been presented as a work of the university.

In his testimony Wednesday, Austin said that the Rawleigh Tariff Bureau purported to be an impartial organization analyzing the tariff.

Each printed bulletin issued by the bureau bears the designation, "An Impartial Investigation," and lists the three Wisconsin professors and David J. Lewis, former member of the United States Tariff commission, as those making the investigation, with funds supplied by W. T. Rawleigh, Freeport, Ill.

Philip F. La Follette, attorney, Madison, is listed in each bulletin as only a consultant.

The objects of the bureau are defined in each bulletin as:

"1. To foster, secure and maintain that equality of opportunity contemplated by the Constitution of the United States.

"2. To prevent the encroachment of the powerful few upon the rights of the many.

"3. To remove all unnecessary restrictions upon trade and travel, promote friendship, peace and good will between the people of all nations.

A Washington and Madison address are given in each issue, so that the objects, headquarters, personnel and funds of the bureau have from the beginning been perfectly clear.

RAWLEIGH MAY TESTIFY.
It is expected here that Rawleigh will welcome the opportunity to tell the investigating committee about the work of his bureau and that interesting differences between him and the bureau of special interests will be revealed.

Rawleigh appeared before the free list subcommittee of the Senate Finance committee on July 11, stated his general position on the tariff and explained the work of the Rawleigh Tariff Bureau. At the end of his testimony Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi said:

"I wish all these gentlemen could have heard you, especially the Senator from Utah." Senator Smoot had been absent during a part of Rawleigh's testimony.

Japanese Naval Men Urge Construction Of Ships

Tokio—(P)—With a program of eight 10,000-ton cruisers, each capable of 33 knots and armed with ten 8-inch guns, more than half completed, high naval authorities of Japan are publicly discussing the possibility that the government will have to lay down more fighting ships of this class in order to keep pace with the United States and Great Britain.

There has been no thought of suspending or abandoning work on the eight new ships, four of which are already afloat with the others due to take to the water within twelve months.

The public and semi-public utterances of naval officers, from Admiral Takarabe, minister of Marine down, indicate too Japan's intention of insisting at the next naval conference on a ratio of 10-10-7 in the allotment of auxiliary watercraft tonnage to England, America and this country.

Japan asked for that ratio for capital ships at the Washington conference but finally accepted 5-5-3. The higher ratio for auxiliary craft was informally advanced at the three-power conference in Geneva in 1927.

The talks gave rise to recent newspaper reports that a supplementary program, calling for four additional 10,000-tonners, 15 first class destroyers and a number of smaller destroyers, submarines, gunboats and oilers, had been decided upon. The navy department later said that this announcement would be made at this time, lest it embarrass the MacDonald-Dawes conversations in London.

It was remarked, however, that no final decision of the reports was forthcoming.

Naval officers and publicists are giving the Japanese press surveys designed to support the claim for the 10-10-7 ratio, asserting that the programs which America and Britain have in hand will give each of these powers between 250,000 and 300,000 tons of modern cruisers of more than 7,000 tons, whereas Japan by the completion of her eight Nachi class ships will have a corresponding tonnage of only 108,400 tons, eight 10,000-ton ships and four of the Furutaka class of 7,100 tons each. Hence, it is argued, that unless the two leading sea powers agree to reduce drastically their cruiser fleets, Japan must build several more 10,000-ton fighters to keep within hailing distance.

Japan, it is authoritatively indicated, hopes for such actual reduction by British and America, thus making any increase in the present Japanese cruiser strength unnecessary.

Of the eight new cruisers two, the Nachi, from which the class takes its name, and the Myoko are in commission. Two others, the Haguro and Ashigara are undergoing trials. The Tako and Atago are on the ways at the naval dockyards in Yokosuka and Kure and are due for launching this year. The Chokai is in the hands of the Mitsubishi yards at Nagasaki and the Maya is being built at Kobe. Both should take the water in 1930.

The Nachi and her three junior sisters are to form part of the Second Fleet, based on Kure, whither the Myoko has just steamed from Yokosuka after being commissioned. On her way to the western naval base she stopped for two days in Ise Bay to permit her officers to worship at the Great Shrine of the Sun Goddess at Ise, the highest temple of the national cult. Each of the principal units of the navy is thus dedicated to the service of the nation.

Each of the eight Nachi-class cruisers is named for a mountain of rich religious and historical association, and aboard each is installed a miniature Shinto shrine enclosing some relic from the principal temple of the mountain which gives the vessel its name. The Myoko, for example, is named for Mount Myoko, in central Japan, whither thousands of pilgrims flock each summer.

SAILOR-SURGEON ANNOUNCES CURE FOR SEASICKNESS

Simple Dietetic Precautions Advised by Dr. B. Sidney Jones

New York—Good news for those who go down to the sea in fear and trembling—

A cure has been perfected for seasickness!

Dr. B. Sidney Jones says so, and Dr. B. Sidney Jones should know. He has spent the last 35 years convincing despondent patients that death is not the only relief from mal de mer, seasickness, marine nausea or what have you when the water is rough.

Dr. Jones now is the chief surgeon of the Cunard liner Aquitania, but he is retiring from the service at the end of the return voyage to England. He previously has been reticent about claiming a complete victory over the most unpleasant enemy of ocean voyagers since man first went to sea. Now, however, records show that his remedial methods have been at least 99 per cent effective.

IT'S A MATTER OF DIET.
Since, according to the seafaring surgeon, is responsible for seasickness, prevention is just as easy as the cure. He prescribes simple dietetic precautions.

"Seasickness certainly can be avoided, and can readily be cured within a few hours," said Dr. Jones. "I have discovered that this uncomfortable ailment is the direct result of an acidosis or acetone condition which can be adjusted before one starts on an ocean trip. We can likewise cure it by the application of simple medicines."

"For those who contemplate an ocean trip, I suggest a simple diet to be started a week before boarding ship. The diet may consist of grapefruit and oranges; lamb, mutton or chicken; plenty of green vegetables and plenty of water. The prospective sea traveler should avoid beef, liver, sweetbreads, vinegar, spices including an over-abundance of salt, and after-dinner coffee. Wines and beers should also be eliminated. However, mild cocktails of gin and orange juice or some weak whiskey and water will do no harm."

ALL ACIDOSIS VICTIMS.
Dr. Jones stumbled upon his solution of seasickness, he said, when he noticed that all of his patients who sought treatment for that malady were suffering from acidosis.

He applied treatment for this condition and the seasickness disappeared. He communicated his discovery to members of his profession engaged on other vessels and together they continued their experiments to eliminate this loathsome sickness.

"We have discovered and agreed that all genuine cases of seasickness respond to an intensive alkaline treatment," Dr. Jones declared.

"I would further suggest that those who are preparing for a sea voyage take some simple vegetable cathartic.

"In most treatments of seasick patients I use citrate of soda. Sometimes, depending upon the condition of the stomach, I add a bit of bromide or a very small quantity of strychnine for tonic. Citrate of bismuth is also very good, combined with a tonic."

Dr. Jones admitted he took up the study of seasickness in a very serious way after a rough crossing on his first sea trip in 1893. He joined the Cunard service in 1896, sailing into Boston on the old S. S. Catalonia. He later served on the Mauritania and was transferred to the Aquitania in 1919.

FOR AIR SICKNESS, TOO.
Airplane passengers can benefit quite as fully from Dr. Jones' experience for airsickness and seasickness both are caused by the rolling and pitching of ships. The same remedies and precautions can be applied.

The doctor's remarkable record of keeping passengers aboard his ship in possession of their normal appetites aroused the interest of English physicians four years ago, and at their request Dr. Jones wrote a special article for a British medical magazine. Many requests for further information from ship's physicians resulted.

"Now that I am leaving the sea, probably to return to private practice in England or Italy, I am quite willing to give this information to the general public," Dr. Jones said. "But this is only after the experiments of myself and others of the profession have proven that it is quite a thorough remedy that will furnish relief in every genuine case of seasickness."

WINS BET AS DOG EATS SAUERKRAUT AND DILL PICKLE

A dog that begs for dill pickles and eats raw sauerkraut was the subject of a bet yesterday at the courthouse between two attorneys.

One of them declared he knew a dog which accomplished these feats while the other denied that such an animal existed. The bet was made and the stakes were placed in the hands of a third party, who was asked to be the judge.

Then the group went to the home of Dr. C. A. Pardee, 224 N. Oneida-st.

Dr. Pardee's police dog, Duke, demonstrated his taste for raw sauerkraut by promptly consuming a large dish of it.

The loser looked on in astonishment and declared it was worth the loss of the bet to see a dog do this.

The entertainment will be general in nature, consisting of games to attract the young members, and a swim to be followed by "eat."

Boys between the ages of 10 and 12 are to gather for their open house meeting at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon, while those between 12 and 18 years old will meet at 7:30 o'clock. The entertainment has been lined up both for members who are coming into the boys division for the first time, and for old members who have re-registered.

FLOOD IS DEFIED UNTIL WATER TOUCHES VIRGIN

Napoleonville, La.—(P)—When ever flood waters reach the feet of a statue of the Virgin Mary, built many years ago by the deeply religious French-Acadian residents on Lake Verret, it is time to move—and not before.

Undismayed by rising water that covered their little crops and crept around their doorsteps, the several hundred French-Acadians held steadfastly this year to the tradition and refused to leave their homes during the spring flood.

Descendants of the French colonists whose flight from Acadia and settlement in Louisiana is entwined with the story of "Evangeline," the dwellers on Lake Verret near here face the hardships of flood almost annually. Whenever the Mississippi river basin, which in turn causes the lake to overflow its banks.

Many years ago the shrine of the Virgin was erected near their little settlement of Pierce Part. The tradition soon followed the erection. In the great flood of 1927 the overflow reached a record height, covering the feet of the statue. For the first time the "Gajones" left their little huts and found refuge in flood rafts.

This year, although the lake is rising cut them from the outer world, there was no emigration. The water did not reach the feet of the statue.

The Lake Verret folk subsist by fishing. They know little of their history, and only a few speak English. Until a highway was built to their settlement four years ago, none had seen an automobile.

WISCONSIN D. A. R.'S WANT ADEQUATE NAVY

Washington—(P)—A resolution adopted by the Wisconsin state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Milwaukee favoring maintenance of an adequate national defense, particularly as to the Navy, has been received by the United States senate. It has been referred to the committee on naval affairs.

Sheriff Fred W. Gleason received a telegram this morning from William N. D., asking him to watch for F. L. McKendzie, 24, who fled from that city and headed toward Wisconsin. A warrant for McKendzie's arrest is held by the police at Williams. McKendzie has a crippled right hand and when he left North Dakota was driving a Chevrolet sedan with Colorado license 73629.

More than a ton of amber was found in Lithuania in the last 12 months.

TURKISH TOBACCO GROWN IN SOUTH

H. Lambus Raises Large Crop of Turkish Weed in Dillon, S. C.

Dillon, S. C.—(P)—Raising of Turkish tobacco, heretofore untried on a large scale in this section, is being accomplished successfully near here by H. Lambus.

Lambus recently cured his second crop of the Turkish weed, averaging a yield of about 1,000 pounds an acre. He sold his crop to a New York manufacturer of Turkish cigars for 65 cents a pound, about 45 cents a pound above the average price for American tobacco.

Last year he experimented with two patches one with fertilizer and the other without fertilizer. The patch with fertilizer attained abnormal growth and was dark, heavy and strong, Lambus said. Neither did it cure satisfactorily. The patch without fertilizer produced a fine quality of tobacco of the desired color and weight.

Plants are raised in a hot bed, the same as those of the bright leaf variety produced in the Carolinas. They are set out at the usual time and reach maturity in about 30 days. Great care is exercised in cultivation, most of the work being done by hand. The Turkish tobacco cannot be flue-cured. It is strung on racks and cured in the sun.

New possibilities for profit in tobacco are seen with this successful introduction of Turkish tobacco production in this area.

PLICE OFFICIAL BELIEVES DAY OF GANGS HAS PASSED

aders Will Give Chicago Wide Berth Says Pat
Roche, Detective

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright 1929 by Cons. Press
Chicago—When "Scarface Al" Capone steps out of the Philadelphia and back into gangland leadership again, he probably will not go to Florida, giving Chicago and its interests here a wide berth. At the same time, when George "ugs" Moran, or the Allos, or the Donnellis, or any other leaders who have survived the fighting of recent years, have more to lose than to wage, they will likely confine them to the limits.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the attorney John A. Swanson, the man who could tell President Hoover's law enforcement commission more about the inside of gangster life than any living person other than Capone himself, so advised today. He believes that the hey-day of gangland power is past, unless some new leader arises from Chicago, is prepared to turn over its governmental machinery to the influence of the killers. In fact the "talkies" have started and talk is the great fear of gangsters—the sure road marked death when hoodlums rise.

The revelations of Mrs. Frank Perry, wife of the reputed gangster, Frank Perry, alias Blige, are in Roche's opinion, genuine. They may be followed by others, telling intimate details of notorious crimes committed in the days when Chicago was overrun with gangs. At any rate, enough definite now is known to make it extremely hot for Capone in his old haunts.

"Chicago gangs lost their real power when they lost influence through a change of state attorneys," Roche declared. "Then the law was turned against them by the expedients—curtailment of off through stoppage of revenue vice and gambling, and action which caused the police to appreciate at gangs no longer possessed complete political power."

FEWER PROFITS
"Capone and the other outfits now are making $1 today where they made $10,000 a year or so ago. They will have their beer business—Capone on the south side and the Moran outfit on the north, but the revenue is cut off. Disputes between the two are settled by the machinery set up at their peace meeting in Atlantic City, but before Capone went to jail."

The big gangs are breaking up. Individual members are drifting into a beer business or into racketeering. Some with money tried the stock market. They got burned and are isn't a doubt but that recent intimidation of brokers is in retaliation.

"When Capone was in full power, he probably had 600 men in his army. At times he kept as many as 50 in his hotel headquarters on Michigan avenue. He received from $50 to $100 a week whether they worked or not. The big Chicago gang armies probably consisted of 1600 men and the expense was enormous."

"While the present outfits are being cut down, it must be remembered that these gang leaders have additional hook-ups. They have affiliations that may extend over much of the country. It just happens that Chicago was the great central headquarters because here they formerly had everything the town could give them—political power, prestige, police protection, money, and everything."

"Gang killing was organized. If it was an important job, the order would get on the phone and it Detroit or St. Louis or New York ask his representative for men to business. Imported killers committed the Valentine Day massacre."

Incidentally, Roche has pictures of the men who he is sure were the leaders in the piece of work. The professionals worked ingeniously.

USE NEW METHODS
They didn't go with a show of force and take the men they wanted execute. Instead the usual practice was to approach a friend of the asked man and threaten him with death unless he would invite them on a ride with his friend. Then the unsuspecting gangster, believing himself in friendly company, would be given a ride and quietly shot from behind.

There is the story of the three St. Louis gangsters who came to Chicago on a visit. Capone is supposed to have received word from these men's associates in the Missouri city that they should be bumped off. So they were taken out for a good time, shown all the gayety of the big city, and then taken out and used as targets.

"There won't be much more of that stuff," Roche says. "These birds know that if they do any more killing this town will be shut up so tight that they can't make a dime. They had a taste of two months of it following the massacre of the Moran gang and don't want any more."

And this investigator, formerly ace of federal intelligence men, does his job of bearding the gangsters, without the slightest fear. They are just as many hoodlums to the watch dog of the state's attorney office.

Denies She or Ship's Steward Fired Bullet That Killed Him

New Orleans—(AP)—Before an open grave on the shores of the Mississippi, lone Ord, sophisticated city girl, gasped, swooned and finally admitted yesterday that a bullet-torn body was that of Jack Kraft, New York newspaperman and adventurer, with whom she had started out to see the world.

A small tattoo of an Indian head on the forearm furnished the identification along with a scar on a knee, which George Kraft, older brother of Jack, who had come from New York, said established the identity beyond any doubt.

The girl swooned a half dozen times and attempted to fight her way free once.

The scene was on the banks of the Mississippi 55 miles below New Orleans and one mile below the spot where her traveling companion's body went hurtling from the Creole, New York-New Orleans boat. Revived by the sprinkling river water on her head she was subjected to questioning as natives, peeping from the underbrush, chattered in queer old French.

She said neither she nor Sam Epstein, ship's steward, had shot Kraft, but would not swear that John McGouldrick, second officer, had not shot him. She declared she did not know who had shot him. She said both McGouldrick and Epstein had come to her assistance when Kraft was beating and choking her in a jealous rage. She declared she had seen Kraft leap overboard. She would not explain the coroner's verdict that Kraft was dead before he hit the water.

The girl was led over the rough prairie to a Negro tenant's cottage, where she was given coffee.

Suddenly and silently a detective laid a bedroom slipper on her lap. With a shriek she hurled the slipper across the room, jumped up and fought the doors and walls in an effort to escape.

It was a slipper worn by Jack Kraft and washed ashore with his body.

Then the investigators drove back to New Orleans stating they were convinced the girl knows more than she was told about the tragedy. The case will be laid before the grand jury tomorrow.

CHINESE GIRLS GIVEN RIGHT OF HERITAGE

Nanking—(AP)—The right of inheritance in China will be extended to the daughters of the family whether they are married or single, according to a decision reached at a recent meeting of the Judicial Department of the Nationalist Government.

This is primarily intended to help rid the country of the ancient idea that daughters are more of a nuisance than a help.

Since time immemorial, girl babies have not been welcome in the average Chinese family. Daughters were seldom permitted to share in the family fortune while married daughters were always left out of consideration.

LEGGE WELL QUALIFIED

There are some men in public life who are just naturally cantankerous and bone-headed. They delight in making themselves disagreeable and in taking the unreasonable or impossible side of public questions. A member of the United States senate who frequently appears in this role is Mr. Norris, leader of the little band of Republican insurgents. One of his pet peeves is farm relief, about which he professes to know everything and obviously knows very little. He has supported all of the fantastic and patent medicine proposals in congress for the relief of agriculture. He is very bitter against those who insist on handling this difficult problem in a businesslike and constructive manner.

Speaking on the question of confirmation of the eight members of the agricultural board appointed by President Hoover, he said of Chairman Legge that he had "grown rich on implements sold to the farmers while the latter were going down and down deeper into bankruptcy. He has been on the other side of the fence so long that he will probably be interested in seeing that the farmer does get some help now." Any person who has been successful and has made money is either a villain or a thief in the estimation of men whose minds work like that of Norris and a great many others who like to style themselves Progressives.

Because a man has been at the head of a great corporation and has piloted it safely and profitably through the stress and storms of modern business competition and has made money for its shareholders, meaning millions upon millions of American citizens in the aggregate, he is an enemy of society and unqualified per se to hold public office or to render a social or civic service. That is exactly the basis of Mr. Norris' dislike of and antagonism toward Mr. Legge. The very statement we have quoted from him proves it, proves the squalor and prejudice of a warped intellect. Great problems like that touching agriculture are not solved by the caprices of politicians like Norris and some of his associates. They are solved by men of brains only, by men who know how to organize and operate large enterprises, who understand the working of economic laws and who have the character and experience requisite to the making of sound decisions.

The farmers of the United States are exceedingly fortunate in having men of the type of Chairman Legge willing to make the sacrifices of a thankless public service, and in addition submit to the attacks and insults of politicians. If the various branches of agriculture are to be organized and this huge industry managed like the steel, oil and countless other industries, to the profit and welfare of the American farmer, it can be done only by men of the type, ability and experience Mr. Hoover has selected for the Federal Farm board.

Mr. Legge is the chief target of malevolent politicians because he has been at the head of the International Harvester company. They know nothing against his morals or business integrity. The mere fact that he has been the chief executive of a great corporation is sufficient reason to malign him. The truth is that his business record and place are the real recommendations of his fitness. Only a tin horn politician would shut his eyes to this fact.

DARE DEVIL STUNTS

The other day a so-called "human fly" who was attempting to give a Chicago crowd a thrill while sliding down from the top of the new 45 story Civic Opera building, fell from the 23rd floor to the street, killing besides himself a boy and critically injuring another.

These dare devil stunts are going on all of the time in the larger cities, to no purpose or point whatsoever. They are dangerous to the performer as well as to the public. What does it matter whether a man can balance himself on the top of a flagstaff 500 feet above ground, ride a bicycle around the cornice of a 40 story building or climb down the front of a super-skyscraper? The inexplicable thing about these exhibitions is why the owners and proprietors of buildings permit them.

LABOR AND WAR

While in Toronto Ramsay MacDonald made a brief address before the convention of the American Federation of Labor, in the course of which he appealed to labor to throw its power and influence on the side of peace. All classes in a war, he said, share its sacrifices. Because of its large numbers, labor bears the major burdens, pains and sacrifices. It helps to make up the army, to manufacture munitions and supply the national credit.

War is an utterly futile and useless means of settling international differences. We have had wars for thousands of years because the rank and file of the people have permitted themselves to be used as pawns by avaricious rulers and ambitious statesmen. All of the wars between nations that have occurred within the memory of men living today have been of that character.

The time has come when the people ought to decide whether there will be war or not and they ought to decide in the negative. Labor should be a unit in support of the program of disarmament initiated by MacDonald and President Hoover. Labor should be a unit in support of all measures to reduce the world's military establishments, peace engagements like the Kellogg treaty and every effort to outlaw and end war.

Labor ought to be among the first to get the international viewpoint that cultivates friendship and good will among all peoples and all races. It believes in the common brotherhood of men and in the promotion of right relationships between them. That is what, in the last analysis, the whole peace movement means. It is an attempt to create throughout the world, or at least that portion of the civilized world which can control major policies in foreign affairs, standards of behavior comparable to that of the peoples of the United States and Canada, who maintain no military defenses against each other and who have no other thought or expectation than that of undisturbed and perpetual peace. Now is the time for the power of public opinion to make itself felt and to range itself overwhelmingly on the side of those who are trying to abolish war.

CHILD LABOR CONSCIOUS

In a brief article in the September American Child, Miriam Keeler tells the story of legislative gains and losses in 1929 in the work of protecting children from harmful child labor. Legislatures were in session in 44 states, and 123 bills of importance were introduced. Some good bills lost out entirely. Some were passed. Some backward legislation was successful in spite of the efforts of enlightened lawmakers and citizens.

After surveying the whole scene, the author summarizes as follows: "More significant than any number of temporary defeats is the fact the bills affecting child labor in one way or another were introduced this year in no less than 37 states. And vicious or weakening bills were blocked in nearly every case. This indicates, in the phrase of the day, that the country is pretty completely 'child labor conscious'. Enlightened public opinion favors progressive child labor legislation. And public opinion, like Antaeus, gains strength each time it is thrown down."

Developing enlightened public opinion on any subject is a long, slow pull. Even now there are a great many honest people who have never given the child labor situation a thought and who would consider it none of their affair if it were called to their attention. That number, however, is steadily growing smaller as individuals from its ranks go over to the other side and take an active, constructive interest in this phase of child welfare.

Seen And Heard
In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Any conception of Manhattan as a never-resting scene of intense activity is apt to be erroneous.

The New Yorker is a calendar watcher. He probably observes more holidays than any other American citizen. And small wonder, considering the barren nature of workaday life in the Great Stone Desert. A day's relief from the grind of subway, shop and office is clutched eagerly on the slightest occasion by a people who must travel miles to find a change of scenery.

There are at least nine major holidays, when scarcely anybody works. These are New Year's day, Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays, Memorial day, July Fourth, Labor day, Columbus day, Thanksgiving day and Christmas. In addition to these, St. Patrick's day is generally celebrated by the Irish and the two Jewish holidays, Rosh Hoshana and Yom Kippur, are rigidly observed by the people of that race.

Each holiday is marked by a great exodus of gleeful Gothamites, bound for the country, leaving the city strangely still and restless for those who prefer to stay.

ADVICE TO AUTHORS

Alfred E. Smith is not literary man, even if he has written an autobiography. The former governor made that clear at a literary tea given in his honor the other Friday.

Yet the governor, as he still is called, wrote his book, "Up to Now," himself. That is to say, he dictated it to a stenographer.

"And," he said, "she was a good one who knew how to correct my grammatical mistakes. I made them and then she unmade them."

Smith was quite at home among the writing folk, most of whom he already knew. The intellectuals hung eagerly on his words, especially when he made the astounding statement that he had dictated 6,000 words a day. None could approach that record and they wanted to know how he did it.

"That was easy," they were told. "I worked a full day and I dictated just as though I was making a speech. Sometimes I would sit down and sometimes walk around the room. And whenever I wanted to give a sentence a 'punch' I would pound the desk."

SOBER SUCCESS

Jeanne Eagels' untimely death recalls the hitherto untold story of an actress who among her friends gives credit to abstinence for whatever success has come to her.

This actress was born and reared a daughter of the rich. She married a wealthy New Yorker and then the couple went to France to live in idle affluence. Soon they became known among the American colonists on the Riviera for their cocktail parties. During the Paris season, the girl became an habituée of Montmartre, usually greeting the dawn on or under a table.

Eventually she suffered a nervous collapse and the doctor ordered, "No more drinking." That being the only diversion to which the girl was accustomed, she found the days of idleness so unbearable that she took up the study of dramatics.

A mere pastime at first, it aroused her interest until acting became her "one increasing purpose."

The only after-theater indulgence now is a dish of prunes.

The audacious act, however, resulted only in calamity for the participants and so embittered the south as to make a peaceful settlement of the slavery question a still more remote probability.

Troops of the regular army under Lee soon regained the arsenal. Brown was tried and convicted of treason, conspiring and advising with slaves and others to rebel and was sentenced to death and executed in Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 2, 1859.

During the following years a popular song in the north has the refrain:

"John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave,
But his soul goes marching on."

OUR DAILY BREAD IS QUITE ALRIGHT, NO MATTER WHETHER BROWN OR WHITE

Soon after a food faddist or cult healer tires of a given kind of food and begins to harangue the public by word of mouth, the printed page and eke the air about the public's diet, the food the noisy one has tired of becomes "poison." Thus many a queer bird has discovered brown bread or whole wheat bread and found it so darn good that he is inevitably driven to the conviction that white bread is "poison." It becomes his mission to save as many people as possible from being further "poisoned" by the deadly white bread.

One such food expert (self-qualified) has a very smooth flow of rhetoric and an easy-running typewriter. He has broadcast so much of this funny advice about diet that not a few people now imagine he is a physician, and every little while some unsophisticated writer or speaker actually refers to the fellow as Dr. McTavade, let us call him, instead of just Mr. McTavade.

It appears the popular estimate of an assertion about a health matter is that there is likely to be some sense or even science in it if it is made by a doctor; very often, though, the public is deceived in this, for maybe the chap is not a physician at all, but a doctor of philosophy or a doctor of dentistry or some other kind of "doctor" in disguise.

White bread is more attractive in appearance than whole wheat bread, to some persons; it has a finer texture and makes better toast than the whole wheat bread does. For some of us the flavor of white bread is more pleasing than the flavor of whole wheat bread and in whole wheat bread, the latter has most of them, but what of it? Unless one intends to subsist exclusively upon bread this is a consideration of no practical importance, since we ordinarily depend on fruits and vegetables to provide the mineral elements the body requires. The same holds true for the vitamin content—there is little or no vitamin B in whole wheat bread, and quite some in good white bread. But don't let the propaganda of the jazz health experts worry you about that. There's vitamin B galore in all sorts of vegetables, fruits, other whole grains, wheat bran, peas, beans, liver, kidney.

Provided you can afford or obtain other things than bread to eat, it is merely a matter of taste whether you should eat white bread or whole wheat bread. Graham or whole wheat bread makes mighty good eating when it is properly baked; at least it is an attractive change from white, now and then, for most persons.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Out of the Presidential Race
Our son, aged 9, gives us much trouble and is himself greatly embarrassed by bed wetting. Is there anything that can be done to correct this? (J. J. W.)

Answer.—Dr. Ralph C. Hamill maintains that in all cases of bed wetting in children the child can be dried if he wants to; just as you or I can wake at 4 in the morning instead of 7, if we make up our minds to do so without fail, for some important occasion. The trick is to teach and train the child to assume responsibility for his conduct in sleep.

We had a talk about this here a few weeks ago. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for correcting bed wetting, and be sure to say that the child is yours. No such boy should be allowed to drift along a wet, a wet can never become a prudent.

Wife Can't Proxy for Husband Kindly send me your advice how to quit smoking. My husband has smoked excessively for years . . . (Mrs. M. B.)

Answer.—Madam, I can assure you there is nothing you can do to cure your husband's coffee that will make him quit smoking. Nor can you serve as his proxy in the battle with the old habit. If he wants to break away he must do all his own quitting. You had better confine your efforts to the helpful and always graceful business of serving the poor fellow, good coffee. A man who gets a cupful or two of good coffee for breakfast finds it easy enough to hold out all day without a smoke or a snifter of hooch. If your husband is in earnest, let him ask me for such cold consolation and warm help as I may offer him.

Tonsils Doomed

Our soon will be 16 in December. He has very large tonsils and adenoids. He is thin. We want to have his tonsils taken out. Should we have a specialist do it? Is it better to do it before cold weather sets in? Is it dangerous? (P. C. F.)

Answer.—Any physician who does surgery can remove the tonsils and adenoids as well as any other specialist. The operation is not dangerous unless the patient happens to be a "bleeder" (hemophilia) or subject to other insidious or unrecognized disease. Good doctors examine or test patient for these "contra-indications" before undertaking such operations. Too many "specialists" and "climic" parasites butcher wholesale and without bothering to make any tests at all—even operating on the say-so of some tin doctor nurse or other busybody who corals the victims and runs them into the "climic." Electro-dessication or electro-coagulation (diathermy) is advisable in any case where surgical removal is fraught with risk.

President Butler of Columbia University says that university entrance exams in 1929 were so stiff that even present-day faculty members couldn't have passed them. In those days, however, it didn't matter, as the colleges hadn't yet invented football.

The mayor of Berlin is in America to study American city government methods. He is by any chance going on the theory that it's well to know what not to do?

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD

BY ROBBIN COONE

Hollywood—The ranks of former "prop" boys who became movie actors, following the example of Eddie Nugent, are growing larger, and the latest of them to attain a degree of prominence is Frank Albertson.

A Hollywood boy, Frank has worked in and around pictures about seven years, which may not be enough to make him a finished actor at 20, but apparently has been sufficient to teach him that "working in the movies is a funny proposition," and certainly to forestall any exaggerated ideas of his own importance.

Frank left high school to find work when he was 13. He found it as a studio "prop" boy, but "worked extra" between times. He went from prop shop to still room to laboratory, until one day he decided to become a full-time extra.

But his calls were too few, and he was about to return to shuffling set furniture when Director Dave Butz gave him a chance in "Prep and Pep." That led to a studio contract, but did not end his troubles.

HE CAME UP SMILING
His first contract picture was "The Farmer's Daughter." Yes, he was the traveling salesman, but he did not get even screen credit. Another actor had been cast for the role, and when he was unable to play the part, they shoved Frank in, but billed him under the other's name. Nobody knew the difference, and Frank did not mind—it was a sorry picture.

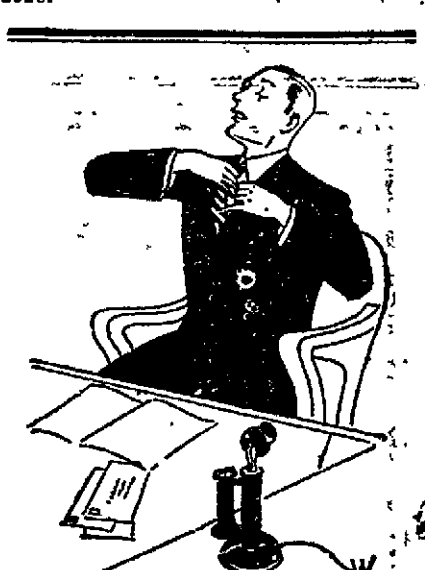

Then he was given the lead in a newspaper talkie. But the story was revised completely, his part "written down" to practically nothing, and finally the whole thing was scrapped and re-filmed with another set of players.

But fortune now seems to be smiling on this kid who took with a smile everything else she gave him. Frank now is in demand at other studios as well as his own, and will be seen in a number of the new talkies.

HAT-SIZE NO LAZIER
It is obvious in all he says that he still considers himself far from real success. He's "just trying to get along," grateful for whatever has come his way, and possesses a large stock of common sense behind his smiles and wisecracks.

Tay Garnett, now a director, first became a screen name through writing screen stories, which he still does occasionally. "Just for old time's sake," while Alan Hale, whom he directed in "The Spleen," wrote more than 200 screen stories before he acted in one. There are many film colony men who thus change their professional status, but scarcely a single actress.

President Has More "Hours on the Air" Than Any Other Official

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright 1929 by Cons. Press
Washington—President Hoover is shattering all existing records for "hours on the air" of Washington's officialdom, past and present.

On three successive days next week, and from three different cities, his voice will be carried over the length and breadth of the land via the nationwide broadcasting networks. These "hours on the air" will be added to his sizable radio record, amassed during the eight months he has been chief executive, and during those arduous weeks of radio campaigning after his nomination for the presidency and up to his lection last November. His campaign largely was waged by radio.

Next week's presidential broadcasts will be from Detroit, Cincinnati and Louisville, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, respectively. Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system have aligned coast to coast hook-ups for the events, and will have their crack announcers on the job.
At Detroit, Mr. Hoover will be at 10:30 o'clock, eastern standard time.
He will be picked up by the radio network at his speech will be from the Edison laboratories where he will participate in the celebration of "Light's Golden Jubilee." During this program Thomas A. Edison, to whom the president and the nation will pay homage, and Henry Ford, also will speak.

On the next day, Tuesday, the president will speak at Cincinnati, from Eden park, where he will dedicate a monument marking completion of the lock system on the Ohio river. The ceremonies will be at about 10:30 forenoon, eastern standard time.

This speech is to be made at the initiation of the Ohio River Development association.

The most spectacular of the three addresses should be his Louisville speech on Wednesday night, at about 9:30 eastern standard time.
The president then will speak from a boat on the Ohio river, discussing rivers and waterways in connection with the opening of the Ohio river to navigation.

Both of the chains have cancelled all scheduled features during the points where the addresses will be made to the "key" stations from which the president's words actually will be sent on their etheral journey.

Frederic William Wile, Washinglumbia "radio master of ceremonies" on the three occasions. He will travel the president's course and explain to Columbia's audience the nature of the events. Edward B. (Ted) Hue-sing, Columbia's chief announcer, will accompany Mr. Wile.

President Hoover, it is well known, is an all-around radio enthusiast. He was the first government official who ad to deal with radio's regulation, and has materially aided in its development. His eldest son, Herbert, Jr., as a radio amateur while in his teens, and now is pursuing radio as is life work, as technical assistant to the president of the Western Air Express, of Los Angeles and in charge of that company's radio communications.

In the white house, the president as his own private radio receiving

Mr. Hoover munges to take time at sometimes during the day or night to do a little serious "dial-twisting."

WHAT'S A BROKEN ANKLE WHEN YOU LAND A GOOD JOB?

Chicago—In his hour of triumph, Philip Keatta fell and hurt himself.

Keatta appeared at the city hall promptly at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon all dressed up like Astor's horse. Someone asked him who was president of the United States and he gave the correct answer. He knew when the Declaration of Independence was signed and he replied promptly when the civil service examiner inquired who was mayor of Chicago.

Then Keatta chinned himself 45 times, held his breath 45 seconds and was within one test of attaining his ambition. There remained the proposition of hurling a bar three feet six inches high.

Keatta crossed the bar with room to spare, but his descent was not as graceful as it might have been. He broke his ankle.

They carried him away to the hospital. Today his ankle hurt, but he was happy. He was informed that he had successfully passed the examination for dog catcher.

FARM PRODUCTS PRICE INCREASED 5 PER CENT

Stillwater, Okla. — According to a summary prepared by Dr. P. H.
Stephens of the agricultural economies department of Oklahoma A. and M. College, the average price of farm products has increased about five per cent during the past three months. Except in the Oklahoma panhandle, and some other places, this increase in price is offset by lower yields.

LIPSTICK USED IN STONE AGE

Irish colleens of the Stone Age, more than 2,500 years ago, used lipstick. In graves of the period unearthed accidentally during harbor improvement work on Lambay Island, off the Irish coast near Dublin, representatives of the Dublin Museum recently found sticks of wax-like pink paint which they declared the flappers of long ago used on their lips. Added to that, there were found stone finger rings, metal brooches, and bronze bracelets. An iron mirror, found nearby, never possessed a high polish, say experts, but could be used to reflect beauty by dipping it first into water. The relics have been placed in the Dublin Museum.

Mother of Eight Boys

"I read an ad in the newspaper and I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will recommend this medicine to any woman who is in bad shape like I was. I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. I have given birth to eight boys and feel strong right after, since I have taken the Compound."

ROTARIANS HEAR TALK ON AFRICA

Dr. R. M. Bagg, Lawrence College, Discusses Trip to That Country

Menasha—Dr. Rufus M. Bagg of Lawrence college, who lately returned from a trip to South America, South Africa and Europe, discussed the economic and industrial development of South Africa at a luncheon of the Rotary club at Hotel Menasha Thursday. He said the rapid development of the mines added quick industrial expansion. The great distance from the markets of the world and the lack of land transportation are the principal handicaps, he said.

While agriculture and lumbering will perhaps never reach a high stage of efficiency, Dr. Bagg said its mineral resources are unsurpassed. Diamonds, gold, asbestos and coal are among the leading products. All the diamond mines in Kimberly are under one management, he said.

Agricultural development is handicapped by unequal distribution of rainfall throughout the year, the speaker declared. As the rainfall is confined to a limited period irrigation has to be resorted to. Dr. Bagg spent some time in the national forests and said that white ants are so numerous that they destroy trees and that much of the hardwood used in railroad building and other purposes is received from foreign countries. The country produces great quantities of wool, the speaker said.

VILLARD LAUDS NEW ATTITUDE TO PEACE

fulness that it has come to one of them to help to lead men like Mr. Stimson and Mr. Hoover to take the path they are now following, to be willing, as the prime minister said in his final address in New York, to take the risks of peace as they have been ready in the past to take the risks of war.

"When my personal friendship with Ramsay MacDonald began we were at the peace conference in Paris, observing the feeble and too often unfortunate efforts being made by the statesmen and generals to bring about a real peace and a new international order which should involve disarmament. Not many Englishmen at that time held high position in public life cared to be seen in MacDonald's company. It was hardly an exaggeration to say that he was an outcast, in Paris, with his political career apparently ended by his defeat for parliament, which left him eager to eke out a living by whatever, journalistic work he could get to do. Had anyone said to us then that this man would be prime minister of England within six years thereafter, and that within ten years he would be the foremost figure in the world by the teaching of his doctrine, then held to be dangerous and criminal, we should all have laughed the prophet to scorn. Yet it has come to pass, and history records no more astounding change in a single man's fortunes in so short a space of time. He has won his way through to a position where he can render the greatest possible service to humanity because of his steadfast adherence to his belief, the belief which Mr. Stimson now seems to hold, that the teachings of Christ as to the superiority of moral to physical force can safely be put into effect in our modern world.

"FARTHY IS NONSENSE"

"But what is the next step? In my judgment, parity is nonsense. If you had two duplicate fleets, one in English waters and one in American, you would not have parity. That depends on other things than vessel equipment. Will there be parity in gunnery and discipline parity in brains among the commanding officers, parity in the will to win? At Jutland the Germans were anything but on a parity with the English, yet they fought a successful defensive, fight and made good their escape, apparently by superior gunnery. Again, there enters in the question of coal bases, repair ports, etc., especially the distance from the home land at which one fleet would have to operate against the other.

"I can not undertake, of course, to say what Mr. MacDonald feels, but I cannot imagine him taking any stock in parity. Let us suppose that we must have paper parity. All right; let us reduce that parity to radical limits.

"And why should we be afraid of being in an inferior position? We were in that for a hundred years of our existence; for at least 95 years of that time the British fleet could have walked into our American harbors and taken them as easily as a dewdrop on a leaf. We were never afraid. The people who were taking authority in the politicians' office. They did not demand parity. In fact they never demanded it until we got a naval war college and out talking, belligerent admirals and our modern fleet. Nothing could prove better the fact than this example, that big armaments do not make for peace but for war. Ever since we have had our modern fleet we have talked war, planned war, and gone to war, whereas in the days before the steel fleet was started we were safe, peaceful and undefended, and nobody talked parity, or national danger, or anything of the kind.

"LET US DISARM"

"Let us join England in disarming rapidly, and let us go beyond that, since she has colonies and other things far from her to police, and return to our cheerfully held position of inferiority. To say that the American people are afraid of this is ridiculous. They are willing to join in a moral force instead of armaments, precisely as they were willing to be completely disarmed from 1815 to 1900, except for the Civil war period. They, I am sure, are willing to have the same faith that the pacifists have had.

"Lloyd George told the Welsh church about three years ago that if England and the United States ever allowed another war to come to pass every Christian church should at once be scrapped as worthless. If we cannot disarm and have the new faith of Secretary Stimson, then let us begin by closing every Christian church in America which supposedly does nothing else than predicate the future life on the doctrine of the superiority of the soul to any temporary victory by force of arms, in contradiction of the supposedly inviolable commandment, 'Thou Shalt Not Kill.'"

'Model Husband' Faces Murder Charge

John Preston, 32-year-old Chicago decorator, described as a "model husband" by his wife, faces a murder charge as the aftermath of a party made possible by telling Mrs. Peterson that he was "working late at the office." Preston confessed to authorities at Wheaton, Ill., Chicago, suburb, that he attacked and then strangled to death pretty Apes Johnson, 23-year-old stenographer, whose body was found beside a road near West Chicago. Preston is shown below, right, with Sheriff Lawrence Hattendorf of Dupage county, who arrested him.

Story About Gangsters Branded Hallucination

Shawnee, Okla.—(AP)—His highly colored story regarding the power held over him by a group of "Chicago gangsters" branded as a hallucination, A. L. Fauble, Shawnee wholesale merchant, today awaited a test of his sanity which probably will determine whether he is to face charges of attempted extortion.

Fauble will face a sanity commission requested by Randall Pitman, county attorney, Tuesday. Pitman filed a petition asking the hearing yesterday, following a four-day investigation of Fauble's story, in which he said he was forced by five gangsters to help them carry out an extensive extortion plot against five capitalists of this region.

Fauble told officers he was forced, under threat of death, to purchase a typewriter on which a series of threatening letters demanding sums ranging from $5,000 to $15,000 were written and sent to the Shawnee business men. The "gangsters," he said, forced him to buy paint and

MACK MADE TITLE TEAMS EDDIE COLLINS SAYS

Philadelphia—(AP)—The Athletics, winners of the world series, were dined and fêted last night by the city, the chamber of commerce and the Philadelphia Sports Writers association.

Connie Mack and Eddie Collins were presented with radios. Electric clocks went to a number of players and each member of the club received a wrist watch.

"We hope to win another pennant next year," Connie Mack said, "but we will have to fight all the way."

Mack said the A's were successful because they were not a one-man team.

"I want to take issue with Mr. Mack on that score," said Captain Eddie Collins. "Fans often ask me to compare the A's championship team of former years with the present aggregation. There is no comparison. Both were one-man teams. And the one man responsible for their success is the beloved Connie Mack."

INTERIM BODIES OF LEGISLATURE SHAPING UP WORK

Education and Fire Insurance Committees Organized

Madison—(AP)—Interim committees appointed by the 1929 legislature to look into various matters of state before its sessions, and that of the 1931 legislature, are slowly shaping up their work of organization.

The committee named to investigate election practices since the 1924 campaign, which failed to function during the session because of disagreement over a chairman, may never actually investigate, or have any excuse to use the $10,000 appropriated to it for that work. It, and now Sen. Oscar H. Morris, Milwaukee, finds it impossible to come to Madison on that day and the meeting is postponed, probably to Oct. 24. Sen. George W. Blanchard, another member has let it be known that when the committee does meet it will "have a statement regarding the investigations."

This statement was made in response to a question as to whether Judge Wickham's decision favoring governor Kohler in the elections ouster suit against him, would have any bearing on the further work of the committee.

Assembly members of the committee are Assemblymen Nixon, Carow and Goff.

The education committee, commanded to investigate the state's school needs and tax problems connected therewith, met last Friday to organize, at the same time, the fire insurance interim group met for the same purpose. The education committee planned a meeting next Friday, under chairmanship of Sen. E. J. Roethe, Fennimore. Other members of the committee are Senators Rush and Duncan and Assemblymen E. G. Smith, J. D. Miller, and O. S. Loomis and W. H. Edwards.

The fire insurance committee is planning to meet about the first of November.

The interim committee on forestry, continued over from the 1927 session, also met last Friday and decided to form a digest of forestry laws passed by the last legislatures of the several states.

The milk prices investigation committee created only by the Assembly, held its organization meeting in Madison Thursday of this week and intimated that it might select Assemblyman Alvin C. Prosser, Progressive floor leader as attorney for its probes into correct prices for milk. Chairman Henry Ellenbecker, Wausau, presided over the session other members being John Dillring, Drounsville, and Frank Prescott, Milwaukee.

NEW YORK TAKES LITTLE NOTICE OF SQUEALER'S TALE

Story Linking Capone With Killings Is Given Little Credit

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright 1929 by Conn. Press
New York — While leading New York gangsters refused to speak for publication, or referred inquirers to their public relations departments, the Chicago story of Mrs. Anna Perry, naming Al Capone as the instigator of the murder of Frankie Yale, stirred only mild interest here. District Attorney Dodd of Brooklyn telegraphed to Chicago and Philadelphia for more information and Deputy Chief Inspector Mulrooney also made some inquiries, but on the whole there was little credence or interest in Mrs. Perry's statement.

In the higher black and white circles, there is a definite reason for a calm attitude toward the Chicago story, regardless of its accuracy. The trade has been stabilized, both here and in Chicago. Extreme disciplinary measures are infrequently necessary and there are many competent all around killers out of work in both cities.

Any unseemly public agitation at this time would be bad for business. Although Mr. Capone has been unavoidably detained in Philadelphia, his executive staff has been looking after his interests here, and there has been a new allotment of territory, new rapprochements and agreements which in their entirety, constitute a master stroke in gang diplomacy. While it cannot definitely be said that there has been a merger between the Capone and Yale gangs, there is at least a temporary abandonment of wasteful competitive methods which, it is predicted, will continue unless restrained by some such statute as the Sherman anti-trust law, or the Sunday closing ordinance.

IS ARBITRATOR
"Little Auggie," small, compact, blonde Italian of White Plains, New York is the tallyrand in these negotiations. Little Auggie, it will be observed, has taken the professional name of Jacob Orgen, noted specialist in murder and mayhem, who was killed four years ago. There has been an intervening "Little Auggie," but, informed in responsible gang circles, he is denounced as a feeble imitator and the title is generously accorded to its present holder.

It is necessary to turn back to an earlier chapter in order to understand "Little Auggie's" present status and activities. Al Capone, unjustly bearing the "stregio" the scar of the squealer, found a friend in his early business career in "Filsey" D'Amato, who counter-acted insidious propaganda and spread the intelligence that Mr. Capone had been given the razor slash by mistake and that he never had squealed. Mr. Capone's magnanimity in not executing the hasty and impetuous carver was applauded throughout gangland and did much to establish him on a sound business foundation. This was the beginning of a lifetime friendship between Mr. D'Amato and Mr. Capone. Mr. D'Amato was Mr. Capone's patron and backer, and jointly they carried through a policy of daring extensions and betements in their Brooklyn operations. When Mr. Capone removed to Chicago, Frankie Yale, rising Brooklyn gangster, of the Bath Beach and Coney Island sections, arrived soon afterward, and it was reported that he and Mr. Capone were associated in various undertakings. Their first serious disagreements arose over a more or less routine killing when Big Joe Colosimo was found loaded with diamonds and greenbacks and full of bullet holes.

It was said at the time that Mr. D'Amato in discussing this controversy, had made some derogatory, or at any rate tactless remarks about Mr. Yale. On July 1, 1927, Mr. D'Amato was neatly "bumped off." This writer has not observed that the significance of what followed has ever

ORDERED FROM CITY
Mr. Colosimo was a rather quaint but not exceedingly important Chicago gangster, but there was an unfortunate argument as to who should stay and "take the boot," as the trade phrase has it. Mr. Yale was detained by the Chicago police and argued to leave the city, which he did, been publicly noted. At any rate it was exactly one year later that Mr. Yale was dispatched in a most professional manner. Does this indicate a dramatic reprisal for the killing of Mr. D'Amato? Some future Francis Hackett, writing great American biographies, may piece out the missing chapters.

"Little Auggie" appears here as the friend and confidant of both the Yale and Capone factions. While he had been a warm friend and business associate of Frankie Yale, he was also the partner of Mr. D'Amato, in two restaurants. His grace and tact began to still the troubled waters. Questions of parity, and even complete disarmament, although the latter was regarded as somewhat visionary, were brought to him. He became the convergence of forces looking toward less wasteful methods and more stability in the industry.

The laundry, water front, and building trade racket is paying out nicely. The slot machine racket is leading them all, and promises to make this a record year in the business. While the gangsters may vote as a matter of civic duty, they are but mildly interested in the forthcoming New York election. They do not display the alarm which big business so frequently manifests at election time. They see no prospect of unsettled conditions and they are all pulling together to make this the banner year.

Drought has caused heavy damage in Czechoslovakia this year.

GREAT ELEVEN IS FACING NEW CHARGE

Woman Alleges Cult Members Took $11,000 from Her Through Fraud

Los Angeles—(AP)—While Ventura authorities moved the golden furniture out of the Great Eleven cult's throne room in the Santa Susana mountains on a writ of attachment, Los Angeles officers received a plea from Mrs. Elsie B. Banks, of Indianapolis, Ind., to aid her in recovering $11,000 she charges members of the order obtained from her by fraud.

The writ of attachment was filed by Clifford Dabney, wealthy 1113 Beach, Calif., oil operator, who swore out grand theft complaints against Mrs. May Ous Blackburn, high priestess of the religious order, which is incorporated as "The Divine Order of the Royal Arm of the Great Eleven." The priestess is held in default of $10,000 bond for trial in supreme court on 12 counts of grand theft.

Mrs. Banks charged her son, Gale Conde Banks, secretary to Mrs. Blackburn, aided others in inducing her to finance cult undertakings. She said a legal action against Mrs. Blackburn and others was contemplated.

In addition to the felony complaints, Dabney has instituted civil proceedings in an effort to recover his money. Attachments have been placed on six lots and oil rights related to Mrs. Blackburn, which with the furniture were said to total in value $50,000.

Dabney charged the woman mulcted him of $40,000 through misrepresentation of a book she was writing. The book, "The Sixth Seal," was to explain the ritual of the order, solve all of nature's problems, and bring about the resurrection of William Rhoads, 19, prophet of the cult, who died three years ago.

SHUBERT THEATRES MAY BE CLOSED BY STRIKE

Chicago—(AP)—Seven Shubert theatres in Chicago are expected to be "dark" after tomorrow night's performances as a result of the strike order to musicians and stage hands issued by heads of the two unions in New York.

John J. Garrity, Chicago representative of the Shuberts, said the theatres never had any trouble here with stage hands or musicians, and that both unions are under contract.

James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, expressed regret at the necessity for calling the strike, which is in sympathy with one in Philadelphia, but said there was no alternative.

Extensive mining operations are being conducted in East Prussia in quest of amber.

BADGER POTATO SHOW WILL OPEN ON OCT. 28

Wisconsin Rapids—(AP)—Featuring various days for those who attend, the annual Wisconsin Potato show will open here Oct. 28. It will continue through Nov. 1.

According to J. G. Milward, Madison, secretary of the Wisconsin Potato Growers association, the opening day will be restricted to members of the association, the doors being opened to the public the following day. Certified seed day will be the designation of the third day of the show. Central Wisconsin day, the next, and the closing exhibition will be known as Rural School day.

Sample boxes of standard varieties of potatoes are to be sent to all rural schools in this vicinity 10 days before the opening of the show with score cards. This is done, officials say, in order that pupils and teachers become familiar with requirements.

Competitive county booths will be abandoned this year, according to Mr. Milward. Instead, he says, booths will simply show the extent of the potato industry and the soil program in central Wisconsin.

Board Opens Bids
Bids on the W. Foster, S. Onondaga storm sewer were opened at a meeting of the board of public works at the city hall Friday afternoon. Business matters also will be transacted.

EDITORS OF NATION TO MEET IN MILWAUKEE

De Pere—(AP)—Editors of the nation will meet in Milwaukee and Wisconsin in June, 1930, tentative dates being set for the fourteenth to twenty-sixth of that month. John A. Kuyper, local editor and president of the Wisconsin Press association, announced today.

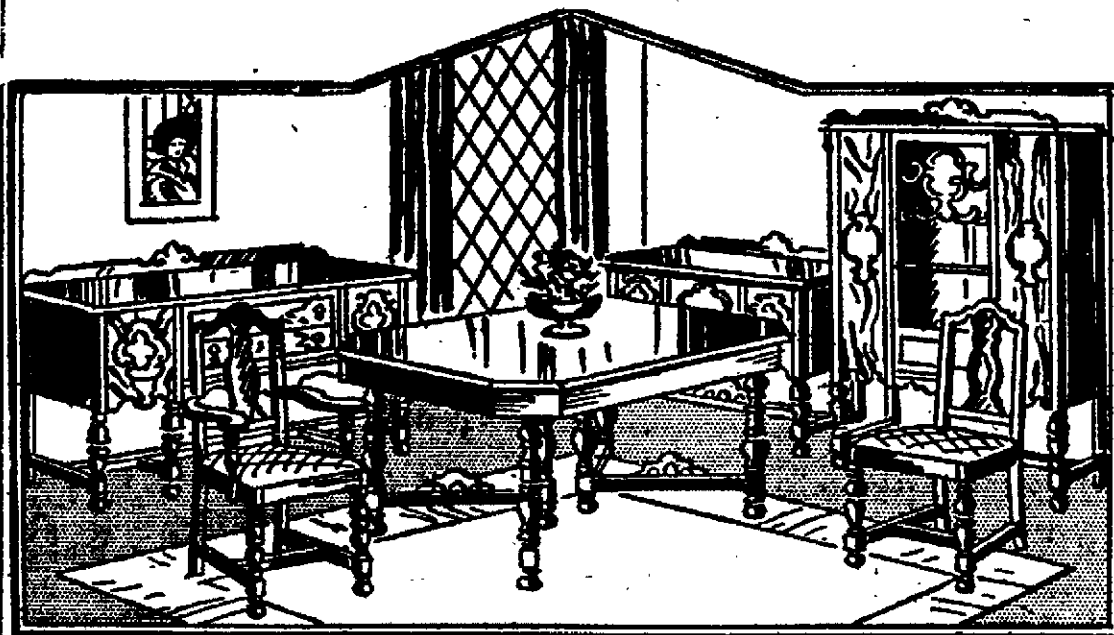

The convention was secured at a recent executive session of the National Editorial association board at St. Paul. Seventeen other cities bid for the convention, with Atlanta and Boston running close to Milwaukee in the consideration of the group.

Tentative plans call for opening of the convention, and most of its sessions in Milwaukee, with side trips to Madison, and by boat, to Sheboygan, Two Rivers, the Mackinac Islands, and the Soo, Superior, Duluth and Port Arthur, Canada.

Congressman Merlin Hull, publisher at Black River Falls, presided at the Milwaukee and Wisconsin convention bid with association of commerce representatives of Milwaukee.

SWAMP FIRE CONTINUES
Cedar Grove, Wis.—(AP)—A swamp-land fire near here continued to burn today in arid lands while more than 200 firefighters battled it. The flames, believed to have started in a brush pile, were confined to an area where little damage could be done. Mechanization of industry is increasing in France.

Hortonville People Are Safe In China

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—From the quiet routine of central Wisconsin to the howling mobs of war ridden China is a long cry, yet the reports of Chinese uprisings are followed closely by the close friends of the Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Jacobson who, with their four daughters, are now in the missionary field in Tsing Yang Helen, Anhwei, China. Their letters, which are received at long intervals, are interesting.

Months had passed since the last letter from Mr. Jacobson was received by Douglas Hudgins, postmaster at Hortonville, a close friend of the former pastor of the Baptist church in Hortonville. So long had the interval been that friends felt anxiety as to the safety of the family which left Hortonville last winter.

The Jacobsons, representatives of the International Missionary society, returned to China after having once having been practically barred from further work among the Chinese. The enemy having somewhat subsided, the couple was recalled to the former scene of their teaching in the schools and homes of the Chinese, but they returned inopportunely, for China had again burst into a new flame of warfare, and the family met enemy and treachery on every side. A portion of a letter states:

"At Shanghai we beheld an angry wild mob. Streets were a seething mass through which we fought our way to the customs. For a time we dared not continue on to the interior for river travel was impossible because of warfare. We were advised to leave Whiffred and Doris in Shanghai, for if it became necessary to flee for our lives we could do so without only the two smaller girls easier than with the others."

Called "FOREIGN DEVILS" "As we later passed along the streets of the town in which lived our friends, also missionaries, we heard the voices of children and some older people calling "foreign Devil." On one occasion they threw stones. We passed through Whew, our former home and the birthplace of our children. Everything was in ruins, all our personal belongings left behind had either been stolen or destroyed. This had been done by the very ones we had trusted."

"In preparation for our trip to Tsing yang, a mission, we called for chairs, bearers. The argument for higher pay arose, and against our determination to pay only the regular rates the bearers held out hour after hour. I became sick of their stalling, called off the dog and sent our cook for a small boat. Twenty-five miles out the boatman refused to go further, so we made our own way to a village and rented a room, half as large as our garage at Hortonville, but very much dirtier. I tried to get a rickshaw, but without success. Finally, however, I got the promise of a ride for the children and Mrs. Jacobson on a wheelbarrow."

The Order of Martha served breakfast after the early mass Wednesday morning.

HOOVER ISN'T KEEN ABOUT TARIFF BILL

Prefers Present Law to One Debated in Senate—Against More Delay

Washington (AP)—Indifference to the tariff bill as it is now being written by the senate and the possibility of obtaining more beneficial import rates on agricultural products through the machinery of the present law are leading President Hoover to the view that the tariff debate should not be extended into the regular session of congress.

In fact, it is quite improbable that the chief executive will ask for such legislation in his message to be sent to congress early in December at the outset of the regular session although it now appears virtually certain that the special session will end without the enactment of a tariff bill.

In the face of a charge uttered by a Republican member of the senate, Johnson of California, that administration leaders, with the exception of Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, are filibustering the bill, Smoot was on record today with a promise to ask soon for night session as a last hope of obtaining a final disposition of the tariff measure before the close of the special session. Such a move, however, was opposed by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, The Democratic leader, and Senator Borah of Idaho, the spokesman for the independent group of western senators, which is opposing the bill.

HOOVER VIEW KNOWN
The president's dissatisfaction with the senate bill is no secret in well informed circles here. His indifference is due in large part to the elimination of the flexible provisions of the present law under which the chief executive is empowered, after an investigation by the tariff commission, to raise or decrease rates by 50 per cent.

His desire for a continuance of this authority is such, in fact, that many leaders of the house and senate believe we would veto a tariff bill denying the presidency this power.

Mr. Hoover is opposed, too, to frequently recurring general revisions of the tariff, believing that they have an unsettling effect upon business conditions, and in the flexible provisions he sees a means of avoiding them and still making tariff changes necessitated by shifting economic conditions. He has already acted to relieve some portions of agriculture, and although the present arrangement is cumbersome, it is believed he would prefer it to no flexible tariff machinery at all.

Johnson's charge of an administration filibuster was made in the senate late yesterday, after the day had been devoted to debating an amendment establishing a consumers' council to appear before the tariff commission on behalf of the public. The amendment was approved, 68 to 11.

Smoot called attention after the vote to the fact that five hours had been given over to discussing the proposal and asked quicker action on phases of the bill to be considered in the future.

CIVIL OFFICERS AGAIN TAKE REIGNS AT BORGER

Borger, Texas (AP)—Civil officers here and in Hutchinson co administered their duties today for the first time since Gov. Moody sent troops here Sept. 30 to investigate the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes and clean up the town.

Martial law was still effective, but Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters had withdrawn his soldiers from the courthouse and city offices here and turned over all police duties to the civil authorities and rangers. The soldiers themselves were due to leave this afternoon and it was thought that with their departure a proclamation reinstating civil government would be issued in Austin.

As the troops left there was no indication that they had been able to track down the gunman who killed Holmes, but their presence had led to the resignations of almost all of county and city officials. New men approved by Clem Cullhoun, newly appointed district attorney, sat today in the sheriff's office at Stinnett and in the city offices here.

The grand jury, which started its deliberations Monday, returned two murder indictments and several indictments for liquor law violations.

Beautiful hair!

Modern hair dressers arrange the hair so beautifully that it's bound to attract attention. That's why it's so important to guard its color and lustre; keep it in perfect condition.

There is no surer, simpler way to do this than Danderine. Each time you use your brush, just moisten it with this delicately fragrant liquid. Then as you draw it through your hair, it removes the excess oil; brings out the natural color; makes the hair fairly sparkle with new life and lustre.

How much easier it is to arrange the hair afterwards. How it stays in place. And try "setting" the waves with Danderine. They stay in so much longer.

Danderine quickly dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition; helps the hair to grow long, silky and abundant!

Young British Business Men Rebel At Oldsters At Helm

BY P. I. LIPSEY, JR.
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
London (AP)—The recent promotion of three young men to be partners in the J. P. Morgan banking house has kindled anew in "young England" the fires of rebellion against the supremacy of old men in the nation's business.

For the bald pate and white head of venerable age still predominates around the council tables of Britain's corporations, and the thin, wrinkled hands of the old captains of industry cling to the controls even as their feet totter to the grave.

The distress and resentment of the "juniors" is all the more painful and bitter since many of them are already well along in the middle years while their tenacious elders still block the paths to promotion.

British trade and industry have wallowed in a fearful slough in recent years and there are plenty of Englishmen bold enough to say that the haughty "old-timers," with their dread of change and suspicion of innovation, are responsible for the continued depression.

"Business is rotten," growl the chiefs of a score of great industries; and as they gather in their directors' meetings, scarcely a dark leader is to be seen among them.

"Young blood," wails the man in the street; "new blood," cries the man on the golf links and the man at the desk. "—that's what the country needs in its business management! Why can't they trust the younger men in America?"

The fearful cost of the war in young manhood is, of course, the first justification which apologists of the white-haired generation offer for the existing state. The withered old fellows must hold on as long as they can, to uphold the commercial prestige of Old England.

The visitor to London, is sure to be impressed with the appearance of England's elderly men. They are, he feels, by all means the most handsome in feature and commanding in attitude, far more imperious and masterful than the general average of young men he sees.

But the rebels of the younger generation, while sadly admitting the heavy drain of the war, protest that the survivors include many men of high promise who are being cruelly excluded by the veterans of trade. The rule, they feel, is being observed with ruinous rigidity.

Men who because of advanced years and physical infirmities must be wheel-chaired to their board meetings — say the ambitious young men of British industry — are lacking in the imagination, vigor, and courage essential for the recovery of the nation's commercial strength.

So the aggressive malcontents of the submerged generation are pointing with fiercer insistence to the American policy of honoring youth in business. And they are using every such notable example in American economic life as weapons to attack the citadel of the British "new-cray-quals."

DREAM BLASTED

TRY TO DETERMINE LOSS BY SMUGGLING WATCHES INTO U. S.

Jewelry Trade and Government Lose Millions
Through Illicit Business

BY J. C. ROYLE

Copyright 1929 by Cons. Press

New York—Investigation now is in progress to determine the losses to the government through operations of watch smugglers, and it includes that these losses have been exceedingly heavy. In addition the jewelry trade, it is claimed, has been cheated out of millions of dollars through the successful introduction of foreign watches without payment of duty.

The legitimate watch importers and the government authorities are operating in combating this evil.

Two huge smuggling plots are said to have been discovered in which several members of the jewelry trade are alleged to have been prime movers. The investigators say their efforts are certain to result in the arrest and seizure of many individuals and the seizure of thousands of collars worth of contraband merchandise.

"The leading importers have just completed organization to combat the watch smuggling evil. Henri Schwob, of New York, president of the importers organization said today that 35 to 40 per cent of the imported watches sold through the retail jewelry trade are smuggled goods.

BIG LOSS IN DUTIES

This fact shows, he added, that the United States government has lost $2,500,000 in duties during the last year and that the importers have lost $5,000,000 in distribution. In support of the charge that the evil is growing Mr. Schwob stated that in 1927 the value of the watches imported was about $11,000,000 while in 1928 the value of the imported was about $11,000,000 while in 1928

the value of the imported watches was $9,150,000 although it is known that more imported watches were sent last year than the year before.

Acting on the charge that many people are carrying on their wrists in their vest pockets or in their handbags watches that have been smuggled, the importers' association has adopted a resolution pledging the assistance of the association to the federal authorities in prosecuting or firms suspected of being in-involved in smuggling operations.

WEILAND SPEAKS AT AD CLUB MEETING

John Weiland, building inspector, was the principal speaker at a dinner meeting of the Advertising club at Conway hotel Monday afternoon. Mr. Weiland interpreted the street sign ordinance in the retail district of College-ave. Herbert Goldberg explained methods of guidance work on the part of advertising clubs.

funds for securing evidence and prosecuting those suspected.

The smugglers have shown no distinction in the type of watches and watch movements they are bringing into the country. Thousands of dollars worth of diamond studded and platinum watches have been smuggled in, as well as solid gold and base metal watches. The practice has been going on for so long a time that it has brought about a marked difference in prices quoted on legitimately imported goods and smuggled merchandise.

Within the last few weeks federal agents have seized at the port of

New York more than a half million dollars worth of watches brought in cases marked "earthenware" and

"chocolate."

LESS SMUGGLING

Diamonds are coming legitimately into the United States in increasing quantities, although there is, as there always has been, much smuggling of precious stones.

According to the English exporters and American importers, there is a distinct demand for large diamonds of 4 carats and upward in round and fancy cuttings. Demand for other stones, notably in the baguette cuttings, is picking up as the holiday season draws near.

Some dealers assert that the amount of smuggled diamonds equals or exceeds that passing through the customs. The American public in 1928 absorbed more than $100,000,- 000 worth of diamonds. Lawful importations for the year ending

June 30 last totaled $56,000,000. In the first six months of this calendar year importations alone showed a valuation of $28,312,846. This was a decided gain over the corresponding periods of 1927 and 1928. Stocks are low and imports are increasing as the year goes on. It is likely that nearly $125,000,000 worth of diamonds will be bought in 1929.

The popularity of diamonds has increased both lawful and unlawful importation and the volume of pearls being absorbed by the American market is almost as steady as that of diamonds. The preeminence of the diamond, however, is shown by the fact that the total value of other precious stones is only about one-tenth of that of the diamonds imported.

VELVET HAS BECOME VOGUE OF MILADY

Flat Crepe With Velvet Bands For Those Who Do Not Like Material

BY AILEEN LAMONT

New York—Even if for various reasons, among them its tendency to crush, you do not desire a velvet frock, you may compromise with the velvet vogue by selecting a frock of flat crepe trimmed with velvet bands. An afternoon dress in rust, red has a wide velvet band around the edge of the skirt as well as on the cuffs, and a swanky velvet jabot to complete the long V neckline.

Together with brilliants, the ornament of cut steel has again come into his own. You will find steel brooches, decorations and bars on hats and handbags, so beautifully cut that they glitter almost like tiny rhinestones. There is an occasional cut steel buckle on a black velvet gown; a beautiful combination. And together with clip buckles of almost every variety for shoes, that of cut steel easily holds its own.

Now that lingerie is again feminine, to the delight of the laundresses, it is decorated with elaborate frills of lace. There is lace about the hems, lace up and down the seams, lace around the neck, lace edging the little sources, and often lace medallion settings. While this lace may be any shade, from clear white to a tint matching the garment, much of it is of that medium ecru which goes so well with green, rose, apricot and the other pastel colors. Some of the boudoir jackets and lounging robes have more lace than silk or satin in their make-up. And some of the new pajamas have the trousers shorter in front around the hem than in back, in conformance with the new frock hem line.

In keeping with the East Indian motif, which is one of the motifs now rife in Paris, is the anklet of silver, or platinum set with real jewels or with imitation or semi-precious stones. A few of the Parisiennes have had these anklets soldered to the ankle, but others are content with anklet that fastens like a necklace. Worn beneath the stockings, these anklets are smoothly set so as not to tear the most fragile hosiery. Of course, now that longer skirts are here and the knee is obsolete, an anklet does call attention to the ankle; though nobody thinks of that.

MIGHT START A WAR
Plymouth Ind.—Bring on all your big trees, for a real battle has been started between Lebanon and Attwood, Ind., to see which has the largest tree. Recently Lebanon boasted one with a circumference of 21 feet with the first limb branching off at 500 feet. Then Attwood displayed one with a circumference of 38 feet, the first branches at 63 feet, and a total height of 120 feet.

5 CABINET MEN AT PITTSBURGH FETES

River Pageant Closes Celebration of Ohio River Canalization

Pittsburg—(AP)—A river pageant today will close Pittsburgh's celebration of the canalization of the Ohio river, a project which links this industrial center with the seven seas.

The celebration, opened with a banquet last night, in which five members of President Hoover's cabinet, seven railroad executives and other luminaries hailed the completion of the nine foot channel, the $100,000,000 project stretching from the historic point here to Cairo, Ill., where the Ohio joins the Mississippi. James Francis Burke, former representative in congress, in the keynote address, suggested creation of an "American council of transportation, headed by the great leaders at this table."

General W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, approved the suggestion. Secretary of the treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of War James W. Good, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central railroad, and Gov.

John S. Fisher were among the principal speakers. The cabinet members here in addition to Secretaries Mellon, Lamont, and Good were secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

ALLEGED GANG CHIEF CLAIMS HE WAS FRAMED

Montello—(AP)—Professing a "frameup," youthful Gladwin Mullarky, reputed gang leader of Marquette-co. today was held in jail steadfastly denying the series of crimes attributed to him by his brothers. Gladwin, charged specifically with arson, has made a general denial of all counts in the brothers' confessions, made when they were sentenced yesterday at Fond du Lac. They detailed a series of crimes in which thousands of dollars toll was exacted.

ENGLAND HARBORS MORE FRIENDSHIP TOWARD AMERICA

Feeling Toward Us Kindlier Than for Other Former Allies

BY MILTON BRONNER

London.—Of all the allied countries which borrowed huge sums of money from us during the war, England has submitted to the hardest terms of payments. France, Italy and Belgium were treated far more generously. But it is a singular fact that the hardest words have been written and said about us in this regard, not in England, but in France.

The statesmen and newspapers of England, with whom we were supposed to have most friction and most rivalry, have in the main remained calm. The statesmen and newspapers of France—our hereditary friend—the country of which all of us had such romantic and sentimental ideals—have been the very ones who have berated us like fishwives.

THE FRENCH ARE BITTER
Only at one period in England did one group of newspapers speak of "U. S." standing for "Uncle Shylock." But the owner of those papers, over his own signature, repudiated this policy and has since made handsome amends. In France, over a long period of weeks when the French Parliament was debating whether to ratify the very lenient debt agreement we had accorded them, Shylock was one of the mildest of the terms applied to America by orators and newspaper editors.

Raymond Poincare, the prime minister and Aristide Briand, then foreign minister, found it necessary repeatedly to remind the French public again and again how glad Frenchmen had been to see our young armies on French soil; how those young crusaders had fought shoulder to shoulder with French troops and helped liberate French territory from the German invader.

The other side of the picture of us was repeated over and over. M. Bergery said:

"If the Americans have renounced war as a means of national policy, they have not renounced gold as an instrument of international domination."

Vincent Auried in impassioned tones spoke of the advantage to us of our capital with which we possessed European democracies.

Paul Reynaud held out this alluring prospect:

"If we join the nations which have ratified their debts to America, the United States will find themselves face to face with a united Europe on the day that Germany ceases to make its payments."

Senator Lemery, representing in the French Parliament our neighbor island of Martinique, said, America had taken an immense mortgage on Europe and intimated that America would some day exact the cessation of its French Antilles.

Tves Le Trocquer, a member of parliament and former cabinet minister, said two alternatives presented themselves to Europe. Either the nations of Europe must form themselves into a United States, forming a formidable block which could talk to the Americans on equal terms, or else Europe, indebted to America beyond its means, must disappear, reduced to a state of vassalage to its pitiless and all-powerful creditor.

Louis Marin, writing in La Nation, spoke of us as people who have understood neither justice nor the fraternity of combatants for the same ideal; who have not taken account of the war declared by us and fought by them in our place for long hard months; who wish to give rich pensions to our soldiers who never even crossed the ocean, by depriving France of the possibility of providing for the old age of men who fought 2 months of bitter warfare; who, by means of riches acquired in the terrible times of war, wish to enslave the workers and the industries of Europe.

The prominent Parisian paper, L'oeuvre, said:

"Europe is condemned to a death slavery or to a union against America. If it is not to submit eternally to the American yoke."

MORE IN THE SAME VEIN

That is pretty plain speaking. It is the kind of thing that was heard all over France for weeks while the parliamentary debates on the ratification of the debt agreement with us were hanging fire. The agreement was only ratified in the lower house of Parliament by eight votes. It showed how many Frenchmen really felt toward us.

It was a kind of sentiment not displayed at nice lunquets where rich and prominent Americans are wine and dined. Nor was it the kind of feeling made manifest to American summer tourists spending their money with lavish hands.

Stomach Disorders
First Revealed by Coated Tongue

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90% of all sickness starts with stomach and bowel trouble.

A coated tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders which lead to so many kinds of serious illness. It tells why the exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, your stomach, dizzy spells.

Coating on the tongue is a sign that you need Tanlac—the medicine which has helped thousands who were physical wrecks from stomach and bowel troubles—who had "tried everything" in vain and had given up hope.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

ITALY CONSIDERS CANAL ALONG OLD AUSTRIAN FRONT

Only Necessary to Link Channels Already Completed to Complete Work

Udine, Italy.—(AP)—The Italian government is now considering a project to construct a canal along the old shell-torn Austro-Italian front during the war that will link her new possessions of Fiume and Trieste on the eastern side of the Adriatic with Venice on the west.

It will be a canal of more than a thousand miles in length—but fortunately most of the digging is already done in the form of other canals now functioning. The major portion of the project will consist in uniting these canals and constructing a new section in Trieste itself as far as Monfalcone. This will reduce the total cost to something like $150,000 and means that only 550,000 cubic meters of earth must be excavated.

The building of the canal will revive many memories of the World War, for not only were some of the fiercest battles of the Italo-Austrian conflict fought where the canal is to run, but portions of the canal itself were dug just before Italy went into the war, in order that supplies and troops might be transported more easily. Further construction of the canal was stopped by the Italian defeat at Caporetto in the fall of 1917.

The Venetian coast, from the city of Venice, perched on its canals and lagoons, along the line of the Gulf of Venice to Trieste, is a net work of lakes and lagoons, already partly connected by canals. The first project for uniting them all in one long chain was formulated in 1909 by the civil engineer, Herman Cecchini. Soon after Cecchini made his initial survey various projects were undertaken to link the navigable waterways by canals.

In May, 1915, only a few days before the declaration of war against Austria, Cecchini, perceiving the strategic necessity of completing a waterways system, urged the building of two canals, linking Marano and Gorghi and Zellina and Muro, one being 700 miles long and the other 300.

Work on the canals was pushed feverishly and by December of the same year the canals were inaugurated.

ed by the Duke of Aosta, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel. The lagoon battalion of Venice began a transport service almost immediately. Three months later, as the work continued, it was possible to reach as far as a point less than two miles from the River Isonzo, on the Austrian frontier. Munitions and armed pontoons were carried up through the canals. In September, 1917, work was begun which united the canal of Marano with the Gorghi canal through the Marano lagoon. After the war the state carried out other work along the lines of canals and then the work ceased.

Now all that is necessary is to construct another portion of canal only one-twentieth of what has already been built, of 80 miles. This will give an average depth of between 10 and 12 feet. It will unite

SHAWANO LEGION POST OVER TOP IN DRIVE

At least one American legion post in the Ninth district has gone over the top in the 1929 drive for members, according to Marshall C. Graff, state commander. The Shawano post Wednesday reported to the state commander that it had enrolled 110 per cent of its 1929 membership for 1930. The post has 176 members.

Legion posts throughout the state are making an effort to go over the top in their 1930 campaign so that Wisconsin will be able to report to national headquarters that all memberships renewed on Armistice day, Nov. 11. Airplanes are to be used to gather memberships in various counties Armistice day so that a complete check will be available by evening.

Negro "St. Augustine" Builds Jungle Church

Mboga, Central Africa.—(AP)—Here in the African jungle a native black "St. Augustine" has established a Christian church, thought to be the most remote in the world.

He is Canon Apolo Kivebulaya, known as "Apolo of the Pigmy Forest," and his "diocese" extends over 12 Christian congregations which he has created among the African pigmies who live along the upper reaches of the Ituri River, a tributary of the Congo.

Apolo was converted to Christianity by a Scotch missionary 35 years ago. Ever since he has devoted his life to evangelizing the jungle pigmies, whom ethnologists describe as among the most dangerous and treacherous of savage tribes.

An English missionary, the Reverend A. B. Lloyd, who braved a difficult journey into the depths of the jungle to see Apolo, declares that the pigmies are malignant. Guided by Apolo, he visited a number of settlements and found the pigmies a shy, friendly race of tiny folk, gentle in character. They are so isolated from all contact with civilization dwarfs, eating their food and moving about with them on their hunting expeditions.

Apolo has received an invitation to visit England, but he refuses to leave the pigmy forest.

"I am an old man," he says, "and I might die of the cold and never come back to my people. I must go on with my work."

JAPAN TO BE HOST TO CONFERENCE ON PACIFIC QUESTIONS

Issues of Interest to Far Eastern Regions Included in Program

Kyoto, Japan—(AP)—The first international conference on Pacific ocean and Far Eastern questions ever held on that side of the Pacific where the most acute of those questions originate will meet in this ancient capital of the empire of Japan Oct. 28. This is the third biennial conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations, which will last almost two weeks, closing Nov. 9.

The conference is entirely unofficial and seeks to formulate no policies and to reach no decisions; but in view of the lively and controversial nature of present-day Far Eastern questions its deliberations and researchers are expected to develop spirited debate. It is certain, for example, that the vexed problems of Manchuria will come before the gathering, and it is certain that at least two of the three nations most vitally concerned in that region, over which war clouds have been lowering all summer, will take part in the Kyoto discussions—Japan and China. The third party, Russia, may be there also.

No delegate to the conference holds official position in his own country, but its participants include men and women of international reputation, and its proceedings will be watched keenly by the chancelleries of most of the countries bordering on the Pacific. The two previous conferences, both at Honolulu, in 1925 and 1927, are believed by the promoters to have produced an exchange of opinion and information beneficial to the cause of peace in the Pacific ocean region.

LARGEST U. S. DELEGATION

Japan, as the entertaining country, is expected to have the largest delegation at Kyoto, although first place in numbers will be disputed by the United States, which is sending 43 delegates, headed by Jerome D. Greene, banker of New York and Boston, chairman of the American council of the institute. Active delegations are also coming from China, Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines, while there will be observers from France, Mexico, the Netherlands, India and probably Soviet Russia. The American section will include a large and active sub-delegation from Hawaii, headed by the former governor of the territory, Wallace R. Farrington.

In addition there will be a group of observers from the league of nations headquarters at Geneva, two representing the league secretariat and two the international labor office.

General topics listed for discussion are grouped under the following headings: "Food, Population, and Land Utilization," "Question Particularly Concerning China," "Industrialization and Foreign Investment," "Diplomatic Relations in the Pacific," "Cultural Relations." There will also be discussion of trans-Pacific communications with special reference to the present high cable rates, many times higher than transatlantic rates.

More specific subjects expected to produce warm debate include Japan's place in Manchuria, Chinese Eastern railway, over which China and Soviet Russia almost went to war this summer, is not specifically mentioned in the program, it is not expected that it will escape thorough consideration, especially since it is understood the Chinese delegation is coming primed for forceful presentation of China's case in several very much alive and open questions of the day.

"KONJOLA HONEST MEDICINE," SAYS HAPPY MOTORMAN

Stomach and Other Troubles Yield Quickly When New Compound Is Given a Test

MR. CLARENCE NILES

"For years I suffered with stomach trouble," said Mr. Clarence Niles, 411½ West Second street, Davenport, Iowa. "My digestion was a complete wreck. After eating I filled with gas—suffered from a burning sensation in my throat and chest. Belching spells brought bits of undigested foods into my mouth. A friend recommended Konjola to me and insisted that I give it a trial. Just three bottles of this medicine made a new man of me. I need not watch my diet any longer, and I can and do eat anything I like, and my strength and energy has been restored. Konjola is truly an honest medicine and I endorse it highly." Konjola is sold in Appleton at Schlitz Bros. drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Test Cars At 36 Degrees Below Zero In Laboratory

Detroit, Mich.—(AP)—Automobiles can be tested in temperatures as low as 36 degrees below zero in a new cold room laboratory set up here for automotive research.

Apparatus recording every possible detail of an automobile's operation has been designed for the subzero laboratory to aid engineers in their research problems.

The lubricating ability of oils, definite knowledge concerning anti-freeze solutions, capabilities of batteries, generators, starting systems and carburetor efficiency in cold weather can be studied in detail in the new laboratory, which has been installed by Chrysler.

What brakes will do under extreme conditions is considered of prime importance by engineers who seek data in the new cold room.

Under extreme temperature changes to points below zero tire pressures are deflated rapidly. In the cold room, where variations from 20 above to 20 below zero may be made within a few hours, tire pressures dip downward nearly 20 pounds in that interim. Extreme conditions can be studied on a year around basis in the specially equipped laboratory.

Since bitter cold weather is generally accompanied by wind, the research experts have equipped the room to duplicate wind conditions a car might encounter traveling to speeds up to 40 miles an hour. Huge fans, electrically operated from outside the room, stir up the atmosphere to simulate wind velocities ordinarily encountered in cold weather.

At extremely low temperatures the men studying the motor car's operation must wear face masks in addition to other arctic apparel. The men who work within the room are watch constantly through peep holes from the outside so that they can be rescued in cases of exposure to cold, escaping gases or other causes.

The room is large enough to permit several tests to be conducted simultaneously by the cold room scientific staff.

RARE OLD TAPESTRY DONATED TO MUSEUM

Boston Is Recipient of Gothic Piece Presented by Robert T. Paine II

Boston—(AP)—A rare fifteenth century Gothic tapestry has been acquired by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts by gift from Robert Treat Paine II.

While abroad this summer, Mr. Paine purchased the tapestry from Knole House in Kent, considered the most nearly perfect surviving example of domestic architecture of Tudor England.

For more than 400 years the great tapestry hung in the chapel of this famous baronial residence, having been presented Knole early in the sixteenth century by Archbishop Warham, then its owner.

The tapestry, 22 feet long and 13 feet high, was woven about 1490, possibly for a cathedral. In it are represented six scenes depicting the trials and suffering of Christ at the hands of Pilate, Herod and the populace from 4:30 a. m. to 7:30 a. m. on the day of the crucifixion.

That the tapestry is from the hand of a very great designer is said to be obvious from the drawing and arrangement of the several parts as well as from the splendid unified ensemble. While the artist is as yet unidentified, a clue exists in the similarity of the design of this tapestry and the more fragmentary Passion tapestry of St. Maurice, Angers, which is attributed to the much discussed designer, Jean van Roome and the no less celebrated Brussels weaver, Pieter van Aelst.

WASHINGTON LOBBY IS NOTHING NEW, WRITER POINTS OUT

It's as Old as the Nation Itself, and It's Much Milder er Now

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Nearly everyone who writes about lobbies in Washington gives voice to the assumption that we all believe the institution of the lobby is something new and then attempts to astonish us by proving otherwise.

Your correspondent is not going to suggest that the customers of this newspaper are as ignorant as that, but after diligent research he hopes to be able to set down more concerning the antiquity and history of lobbies than has even been gathered together before. The unanimity with which writers have neglected this subject is nothing short of astonishing and no more than a general outline can be given because lobbies out after the people's money have nearly always been accepted with the greatest equanimity.

FROM THE BEGINNING
There never has been a time since the establishment of this government when the lobbyists were not on the job in the national capital.

They have taken goodness knows how many billions of dollars from the American people through their grabs of land, natural resources and profitable favors. Any complete history of lobbies, including those which have worked on state legislatures, would take ten times the space of the largest encyclopedia. It is often pointed out that the modern day lobby is far smoother and more respectable than the lobby of the last century. That's a fact that it's just as well. If the old lobby's tactics hadn't finally been modified the White House would now be occupied by a member of the power trust, the Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial would have been moved to some billionaire's back yard and the customs houses would all be in the hands of some enterprising corporation.

The time came when there wasn't much left to steal and competition became so keen that lobbyists began to checkmate each other. But until Congress and the legislatures had given away most of the country and its natural resources there were lobbyists on hand of the very type to grease the legislatures and speed the process. Today there isn't much left, except power sites and those are being handed out as rapidly as possible.

"The Fathers" believed in direct action. At the outset they did their own lobbying when it was necessary. Instead of hiring someone. Alexander Hamilton led the first congressional lobby in the first for the funding of the national debt and the assumption by the federal government of the state debts. The people with money had bought up this paper from the people who needed money for as low as 10 cents on the dollar. Members of Congress were among the speculators and the others came rushing to the scene to exert pressure.

"I do not know that pecuniary influence has actually been used," wrote Senator William Maclay of Pennsylvania in his journal, "but

France Cuts Number Of Troops Within Capital

Paris—(AP)—Paris, the goal of many an invading army since the time of Caesar, has not only done away with the three rings of fortifications that encircled her before the great war, but has greatly decreased the troops that once were on constant peace-time duty within her walls.

Before the war the garrison of Paris counted 20,000 bayonets and 4,000 sabres, with the artillery, the engineers and supplementary services bringing the number of men above 25,000. Today only 2,500 men are on duty in the capital.

Whenever the peace of the city seems menaced, troops are brought in from provinces by rail—a hundred

I am certain that every kind of management has been practiced and every tool at work that could be thought of."

PUT THROUGH A DEAL

The "assumption" measure was first defeated. But meanwhile another lobby had been urging the building of a national capital along the Potomac river and after the Hamiltonian lobby had conceded the latter project Jefferson and other southerners were finally persuaded to agree to "assumption." The speculator, many of whom had bought up the paper from uninformed soldiers and planters on the basis of inside information, cleaned up.

After that the speculators and the lobbyists turned their attention to the land and began the long but thorough campaign to loot the public domain.

Twice this year the army has brought battalions to Paris from the country to be ready to aid the police. The first occasion was on May day, when trouble from the Communists was feared. The second time was Aug. 1, for exactly the same reason. Nothing happened on either day.

The troops, for the most part, were kept in the suburbs. It is outside the walls of the city that future troubles, if they come, are likely to be started. The industrial revolution, the housing crisis since the war and other modern developments connected with the growth of Paris itself have brought about a migration from inside the city to its suburbs of a goodly portion of the proletariat. The descendants of the revolutionists who stormed the Bastille in 1789 and the Rue de Rivoli during the Commune of 1871 are living in great numbers these days, not in Paris itself, but in the industrial centers surrounding the capital.

The number of soldiers brought to Paris to keep an eye on potential trouble-makers on May 1 and Aug. 1 of this year was reported to have been 2,000. This would have increased the strength of the garrison to 4,500 men.

If that number is correct, a Gallieni of today would not have to command every inch in Paris to convey his garrison to a battlefield. The Paris of 1929 has four or five taxis for every soldier on her streets.

Railways of Egypt are to be electrified.

SUPER TURKS ASK THAT GOVERNMENT RUN ALL SCHOOLS

Private Institutions Should Not Exist; Symbolic of Social Heights

Angora, Turkey —(P)— The super-democrats of the new Turkey are setting on foot a movement to have all private schools in the republic turned over to the state. In a true democracy, the leaders of this movement argue, private schools should not exist as they are symbolic of social distinctions. All secondary schools must be run by the state, they conclude. In order that social inequality may be avoided and also in order that uniformity, "the essence of the republic," may be obtained. Even the strict governmental inspection of all private schools, Turkish as well as foreign, which was inaugurated by the Kemalists, does not ensure the desired uniformity, according to the private school abolitionists. If the government heads these apostles of pure democracy who are

FASTENING AVOIDED IN ELASTIC TOP SKIRT

Paris —(P)— A new sport skirt has a wide supple band of elastic shirred into the top of it. It has no side opening or ordinary closing. Paris calls it a pull-on skirt. The designer who introduces it limits its use to always-ready types of tweed suits. The skirt slips on over a combination shirt and short in one place. Wrap around or envelope skirts are shown at the same house over blouse and short foundations. Filling the press with their appeals, some eighty foreign schools — English, American, French, Italian and German — would come under the ban as well as a considerable number of schools now supported by the Greek, Armenian, and Jewish communities. The American colleges would not be affected as the 100 per cent states control is projected only for primary and secondary schools. Much as the Kemalist government may wish to satisfy this new thirst for pure democracy, it is doubtful whether it could for some time to come finance the Turkish and foreign private schools in question. The utility of these schools in Kemal's war against illiteracy is too evident to make their abolition likely.

Investigates Lobbying at Capital

Disclosure in the investigation of William B. Shearer's "big navy" lobby activities have led to a promised investigation of all lobbyists in Washington. Here are five senators who have been appointed members of the committee to investigate lobbying: left to right, Senator Arthur H. Robinson of Indiana, Senator T. H. Caraway of Arkansas (committee chairman), Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana and Senator John J. Blaine of Wisconsin.

GEOPHYSICS USED TO SEARCH FOR NEW POOLS

Oklahoma City —(P)— Geophysics is taking many guesses out of oil field geology. The seismograph, the torsion balance and the magnetometer are used to locate hidden domes or buried mountain ranges, in which or along which oil may be trapped. More than half of recently discovered salt dome fields in the southwest have been credited to the seismograph. In general it operates on the principle that sound waves travel faster through solid masses than through air. The torsion balance embodies the law of gravity, while the magnetometer is based on the principle of magnetism. Although patents on most of these and other delicate instruments of geophysics are held by Germans, the American oil industry has developed more geophysical operators than Germany. Three times as many men committed suicide as women in Illinois last year.

SEES ALL OF ENGLAND BUT IT TAKES 10 YEARS

London —(P)— Advocates of the "see your own country first" movement will be interested in the record just hung up by James Allen of Coventry. Allen is believed to be the first Englishman who ever insisted on seeing every city, town and hamlet in his native country. Ten years ago he inherited $75,000 from a rich uncle. The unexpected legacy encouraged him to do something he always had wanted to do — see the north of England in an automobile. He bought a car and steered north, but long before he finished the northern counties he fell in love with the idea of seeing all England with the same thoroughness. It has taken him a decade to do it, and he has worn out three automobiles, but so far from "letting up" with such travel is he that he contemplates now a similar point-to-point exhaustive tour of Scotland. Seeing all the cities, towns and villages in Scotland will take him three years, Allen estimates. His habit is to travel alone, and to sleep by the roadside as many nights as the weather permits. # Set apart — and above — by this 50 year influence

50 years old

GLANCE fifteen years back in this half-century of public service. Realize, if you will, the important part played in the rapid drama of motoring by the limited region then served by Wadhams.

On that small area centered the attention of the petroleum world. For here, single-handed, flourished a company that dared to cry out against the down-grading of gasoline — against the adulterating and lowered value-giving then sweeping across the nation.

That company, against all opposition and temptation, dared to set forth that better gasoline was a public right and needlessly poor gasoline a public affront!

It dared to defy, to educate, to prove and to supply. Because of its example and protection at the shock-line of combat, smaller near-by companies took courage themselves to offer better fuel grades . . . and hostile companies, to meet this combined onslaught, were forced to bring up their quality many points above the caliber they furnished outside the Wadhams territory!

FIFTEEN — ten — five years ago — today . . . that influence has been little changed. Nowhere else in America has there been such universal adoption of "high test" nor so many sources for its supply.

And mark! No matter where he has bought, not a motorist within range of the Wadhams expanded territory but has profited in fuel quality by this force that has been fifty years in building.

To profit most, tap it at the parent source — in the four products bearing the seal of the Wadhams name: —

Lawrence Eleven Will Open Season With Beloit

Bob Shawkey Is Named Manager Of N. Y. Yankees

VIKINGS SHOW ON HOME LOT FIRST TIME THIS YEAR

Have Won Two of First Three Games but Still Failed to Reveal Full Power

Miller

THE 1929 edition of the Lawrence college football team will go on display before the home folks Saturday afternoon when the Vikings meet Beloit college on George A. Whiting athletic field. The game will begin at 2:30.

Four weeks ago Coach Clarence H. Rasmussen took his eleven forth on its first game. The Vikings were returned victors after a late rally. The week following they were humbled at Milwaukee by the powerful Marquette eleven and then last Saturday trampled on Northwestern college of Watertown 26 and 6.

So despite the gabbling of the knackers club the Vikings will return to the Lawrence grid with two wins and one defeat. But the initial three games were non-conference battles and meant comparatively little—Saturday's game will mark the opening of Big Four conference competition.

Beloit comes to Appleton with a record not as good as that of the Vikings but as strong as Lawrence on a basis of competitive scores against Northwestern. Both teams have beaten Northwestern, Beloit by 25 points and Lawrence by 26, although the Vikings were scored on by the Beloiters.

BELOIT TACKLE HURT

Reports from downstate are that the Gold will come here weakened but the stories are discounted by Coach Rasmussen. State line reports are that Kulch, husky tackle has an infected leg and Shedd, a guard, had a bad ankle. The former was in the hospital most of the week while the latter was out in uniform Wednesday but cannot put much weight on the injured member. And to top matters off Messerbrink, a fullback, has jumped the squad to go to Beloit where he will enter Valparaiso.

But Coach Jagard, leading Beloit in his first season, isn't much worse off than Coach Rasmussen. Razz has an injured captain, Gib St. Mitchell, a couple of injured tackles, Bickel and Schneller, and an injured guard, Vincent.

Rasmussen completed a hard week's drill with the Vikings Friday evening and if they haven't gotten the stuff down it isn't the coach's fault. The men have received plenty of coaching and have had their signals simplified to a point where anyone can learn them—all the team has to do now is get up its spunk and go out and fight for about an hour Saturday.

Picking a Lawrence lineup for Saturday is a puzzle. Rasmussen has indicated he will make several whiffs but whether he does is another thing.

Indications are Gib St. Mitchell and Laird will start on the ends with Schneller and Bickel at the backies. "Mick" claims his ankle will stand the gaff and Schneller's should be all right, too. He injured the ankle in the season's first game and has taken off enough time for two ankles to heal. Bickel has a bad knee but he'll give all he can as long as he can stand.

VINCENT, VOECKS GUARDS

The guards probably will be Carl Voeks and Tuffy Vincent. The latter has a bad knee but should get the call over Tiny Krohn who hasn't been getting far this season because of injuries and bruises. Paul Miller will take care of center and can rest while Morton performs.

Choice of backfield men is a greater guess than the line. One set of backs can carry the ball and don't stop forward passes while the other set can stop passes and can't carry the ball. Which group is the one to start is a guess that even the second guessers won't take.

Steinberg should start at quarter because Barnes is ailing with a bad shoulder and if he can cut out the clowning and get serious about the task at hand might lead the Vikings to a victory. Paul Fischl will be at fullback, and carry the brunt of an attack. He also will do the punting.

Anyone's guess as to the remaining two backs is good enough. They may be Rasmussen and Trankle or Trankle and Brussat or Gelpke or Hales or Vedder. No one knows or will know until Coach Rasmussen gives them the beck Saturday afternoon.

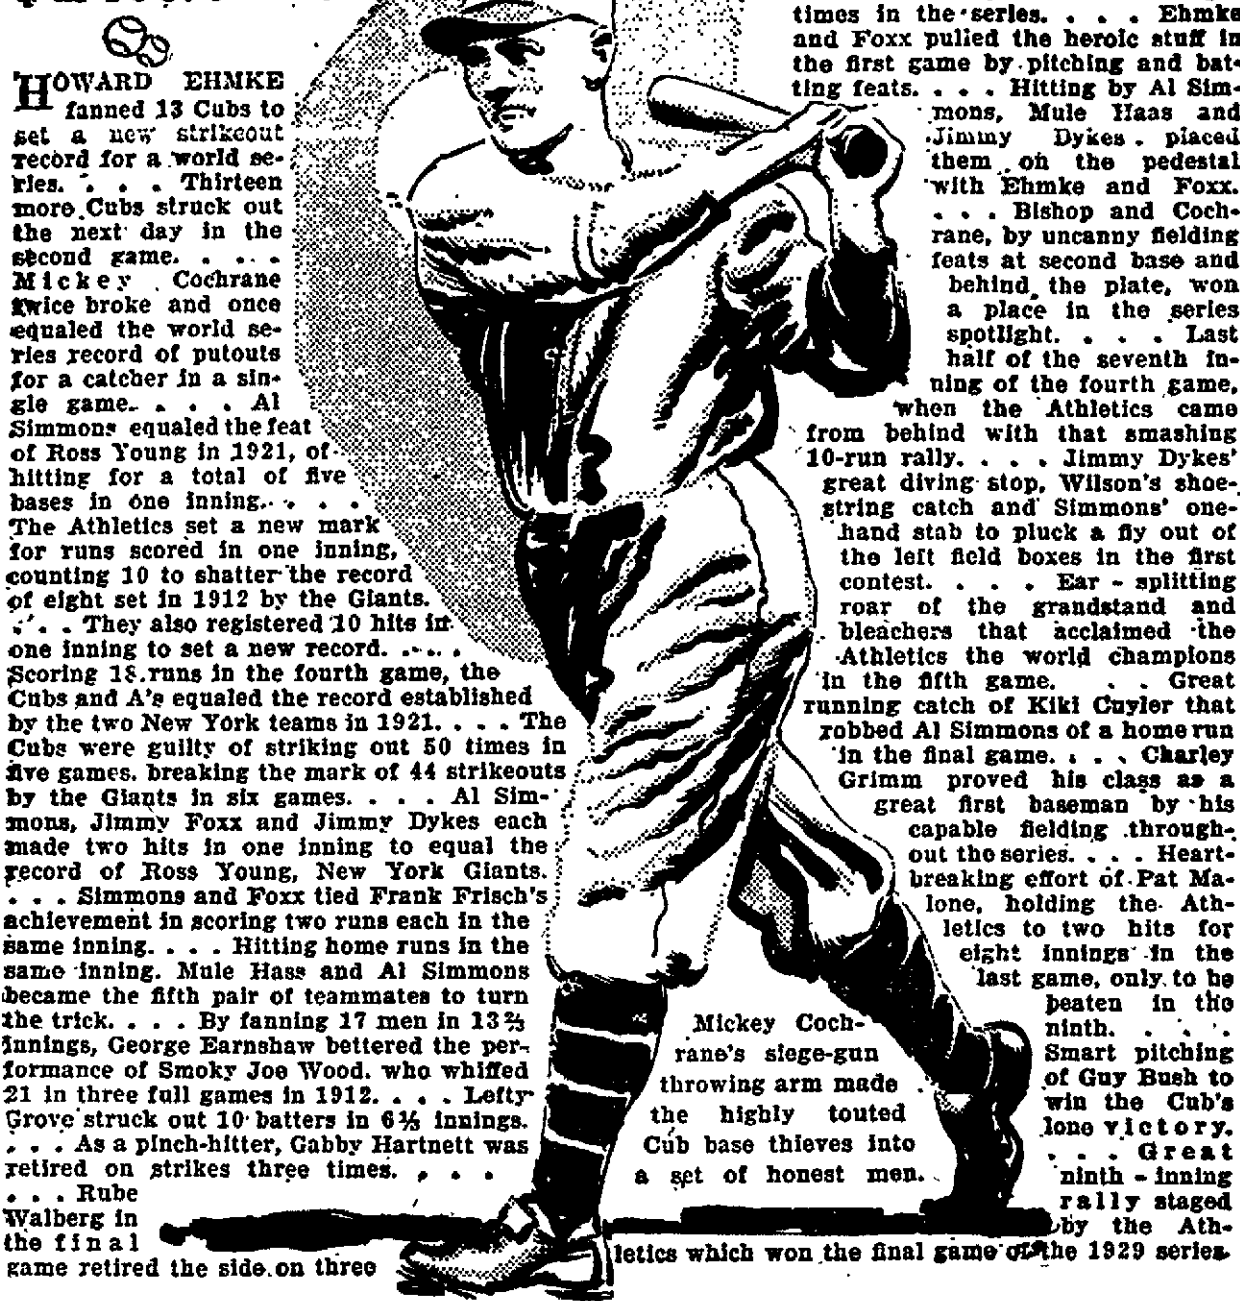

The performance of the Vikes Saturday will make or break the season. If they come through with a victory and not a marginal one either, they'll rate among the top notchers. If they don't they might just as well turn their suits over to the freshmen where a gang of enterprising youngsters are coming along to make things interesting for the alleged varsity players next fall.

Landis Tells Why Cubs Lost

Chicago — (AP) — The why of the Cubs' defeat by the Athletics in the world series has been explained by no less an authority than Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball. Mr. Landis spoke at a meeting of business men.

"Everyone knows why the Cubs lost," he explained. "It was because they didn't play as well as Connie Mack's men."

WE'LL NEVER FORGET That—

Justice which won the final game of the 1929 series.

Early Season Defeats Don't Mean Very Much

BY LAWRENCE PERRY Copyright 1929

NEW YORK — Of the leading universities the ones that were defeated last Saturday more than one will be a much different outfit by November than it is today.

Football these days has to be viewed with a different understanding from that of a decade and more ago. Any eleven now is likely to beat any other and the big fellows to accept this situation with philosophy while slowly they pursue their plans with reference to natural rivals to be met later in games the outcome of which will spell success or failure of the season.

If, for example, Georgia Tech develops to a point where she defeats Alabama and Georgia her adherents will account the fall of 1929 a blazing success irrespective of what has previously happened. Therein lies the merit of natural rivalry and teams that are blessed with traditional friendly enemies are in a happy position inasmuch as disasters that occur in the course of early development have in these days of widely distributed strength little or no more significance. It would not be at all surprising were Georgia Tech, viewing her present status as a football combination, to lose her next two games. But next month, the writer predicts, the Yellowjackets are going to be an outfit worthy of the high standard of this Atlanta institution. The material is there and with care and attention to detail the coaches are working upon the problem of effecting proper combinations.

Michigan's defeat by Purdue may hurt the Wolverines when the final conference standing is reckoned but conditions in the Big Ten today are such that championships in this organization are beginning to mean less than victory over certain time honored rivals. Let Michigan defeat Harvard in that big inter-sectional game next month, let her defeat Illinois and Ohio State and you will find no regretting at Ann Arbor when the season is over. Michigan has inherent strength and a flock of Purdue forward passes breaking just right against her means little in terms of the future.

Princeton is going to be strong. Last Saturday's score, Brown 13, Princeton 12, may be construed as evidence against such a statement. But it should be borne in mind that the Tigers made their two touchdowns by running plays through a strong opposing line and that in addition she made two touchdowns, one of which was thrown out because of offside, the other because of roughing the kicker. You may not add those last touchdowns to the score, but it would be unwise to ignore them in any effort to appraise the potential strength of Old Nassau.

The greatest opportunity for an upset will be in the Sheboygan-Oshkosh game. A remodeled Sheboygan team Saturday battled Marquette, until then undefeated and untied, to a 6-6 deadlock and outplayed the powerful Northern eleven in three periods. Oshkosh, its running attack smothered by a fast charging Green Bay line and its forward wall ridiculed by the terrific plunging of Red Daman, all-conference fullback, was beaten by East by a wider margin than Sheboygan had been the previous week. However the Blue and White will rule the favorites.

East will invade Fond du Lac as the conference leader, and the 1928 champions are not likely to stumble over this second division obstacle. The Fond du Lac troops have proved themselves dangerous, but are lighter and less experienced than East and lack the Red Devils' versatility of attack.

Appleton will invade Manitowoc, Appleton, with a heavy line and two star backs in Crane and Berg, will be a heavy favorite to whip Manitowoc.

West is expected to resort to an aerial attack against Marquette in the fourth conference battle carded. Coach White's inexperienced eleven has thus far failed to register a conference victory whereas Marquette has not been beaten. Lack of offensive punch has been the greatest difficulty with Coach White's West lads. Whether a heavy but green West line will be able to stop Sorenson is another question which will not be decided until the game has been played.

MANITOWOC SET TO DOWN ORANGE GRID SQUAD SATURDAY

Lake Shore Boys Have Hopes of Breaking Into the Win Column

VALLEY CONFERENCE STANDINGS

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.

East Green Bay	2	0	0	1.000

Manitowoc	1	3	0	.250
West Green Bay	0	2	0	.000
Sheboygan	0	2	1	.000

SATURDAY'S GAMES

Sheboygan at Oshkosh.
Appleton at Manitowoc.
East at Fond du Lac.
Marquette at West.

TILL bumped and bruised as the result of last week's victory over Fond du Lac, Appleton high school football team will meet Manitowoc high griders at the lake shore city Saturday afternoon.

With only one defeat marked against them and two victories to their credit, the Orange are in quest of a third win. East Green Bay may be conceded the valley title for this season but the Orange will finish as close to the top as is possible.

The cripples which include Tubby Reetz, guard, Winters, tackle and Crane, half back, all will be willing to try their luck Saturday but where the spirit is willing and the flesh weak, the men might just as well be kept on the bench.

Manitowoc, after a trouncing last week is resolved to get into the win column at the expense of the Orange. Realizing that his line was failing to charge properly in last Saturday's game Coach Sutton ordered out a charging sled during the week and set his men to shoving it up and down the lake front.

The Ships won't boast a veteran line when they take the field against Appleton but the rookies know they're going up against big fellows and all set to do a lot of spilling. Coach Sutton lost most of his line by graduation and now is developing for next year or perhaps the next.

Galbraith, a stocky youngster who starred last season is about two-thirds the Manitowoc offense. He plunges hard and can rattle fast enough when going around and off tackle to make things highly interesting. Peterson, a half back helps Galbraith tote the ball.

Coach Joseph Shields' line will probably see Steenis, Bedrick, Schmitz, and Winters and Mindl. Schmidt tackles and Reetz and Rossmel guards. Stark will be at center. In the backfield Capt. Norbert Berg will perform at quarter, Crane, Mortell, Frank at halves and Holterman at full.

Manitowoc will watch Berg and Crane closely for the reputations of the two fellows has been passed up and down the valley. As a result the warning sign goes up the minute either of the two get the ball.

MARQUETTE IS READY FOR FIRST NIGHT GAME

Milwaukee — (AP) — Night football gets its first trial here tonight at the Marquette stadium when the Hilltoppers clash with Iowa State in the main feature of the 1929 "homecoming." The game will start at 8 P. M.

Advance sales indicate a near-capacity crowd will be on hand. The lighting system was given a complete test and was not found wanting. No punts were too high nor passes too fast to be lost in the beam- ing arcs, which make players' number easily legible.

A starting lineup for Marquette is still up in the air. Faults evident in the Grinnell debacle indicate the need for a punter to relieve the overworked Shorty Mendelson and a stronger passing attack. The Hilltoppers, however, have the advantage of psychology and tradition. Never have the Amesmen won in the games between the two.

CUB FANS APPARENTLY DON'T CARE FOR MONEY

Chicago — (AP) — About $75,000, only a small part of the total, has been refunded by the Chicago National league baseball club to holders of tickets for the sixth and unnecessary game of the world series.

While there was a steady stream of persons seeking refunds yesterday, those who have money coming from the Cub enthusiasm, failed to show as much enthusiasm about getting it, as they did while giving it for tickets. The total amount to be refunded is about $2,020,000, including taxes.

KING TUT MAY HAVE "SENTENCE" LIFTED

Chicago — (AP) — King Tut, Milwaukee contender for the world lightweight championship, will be given an opportunity to reduce his 30-day suspension, imposed yesterday by the Illinois State Athletic commission, for fouling Lope Tenorio, Filpico, boxer on Wednesday night at the Chicago stadium.

Major General John V. Clinch, chairman of the commission, told Tut his "sentence" would be reduced if he signed to fight in Chicago before the 30 days are up.

Patterson, N. J. — Jole Harrison, Passaic, outpointed Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo, (10).

DID YOU KNOW THAT— ROGER BRESAAN, famous ex-Giant catcher, at the world series this year, bemoaned the fact that his hey-day was 20 years ago. ... It'd like to get in on some of the "big money" of present day ball players. ... Dick Shikat, the heavy-weight "grunt and growl" king, served four years in the German navy during the World War. ... He was only 14 years old when the war broke out. ... Four of his brothers saw service, also. ... And two of them were killed in action. ... Notre Dame went into the game with the Navy without the guiding influence of the "Sage of South Bend." ... Knute had to remain at home because of an attack of sciatica rheumatism.

Minnesota's Greats Will Play Against Each Other In Packer Game Sunday

Lidberg to Play With Bays and Joesting With Minneapolis

Green Bay — One argument that has long split the ranks of Minnesota's football colony—who was the best fullback, Lidberg or Joesting?—will be settled in actual competition at the City stadium here Sunday afternoon when the Minneapolis Redjackets and Green Bay Packers clash in a National Football league encounter.

The argument about these two plunging fullbacks has been heard on the Gopher campus ever since Lidberg graduated from the forestry school and Joesting loomed on the varsity football horizon to plunge his way to all-American fame for two successive seasons.

Both these former Gophers are of the bone crushing type of players. When they plunge something has got to give and it is generally the opposition. Several years ago when Lidberg first joined the Packers he was the sensation of the National league. "Cully" coached for two seasons at Colgate and returned to the pro ranks of the gridirers this fall.

He has not been used much as the fullback's work has been split up three ways but Sunday, Capt. Lambeau is going to give him every opportunity to step into action and offer the much celebrated Mr. Joesting a chance to see what a real fullback looks like.

JOESTING WORKS HARD

Reports from Minneapolis carry the news that Joesting is working harder than ever this week so that he will be right on edge when the whistle blows for his duel with Lidberg. These two fullbacks have clashed but once before and that was when Lidberg was playing fullback in his senior year on the Gopher varsity and Joesting was lugging the ball from the same position as a member of the Minnesota "Frosh" eleven. The feud started then and it is still on, according to all accounts.

The Football corporation ticket office in The Press-Gazette building will be open for the rest of the week. None of the bleacher seats are being reserved and this means just that much more of a stampede for the reservations in the big stands.

CANZONERI FAVORED TO BEAT JOHNNY FARR

New York — (AP) — Tony Canzoneri, former holder of the world's featherweight title, meets Johnny Farr of Cleveland, in the feature ten-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Canzoneri, now a full-fledged lightweight, figures as a 2 to 1 favorite.

Green Bay fans may be assured that he will play in every quarter down there unless he breaks a leg or fractures his skull.

With several thousand Minneapolis fans planned to attend the Minnesota Northwestern game in Evanston, Oct. 19, it looks as though many of these will tarry on the way home to see Sunday's game between the Red Jackets and the Packers. More than a dozen special trains have been chartered for the game with the Purple.

FORMER PITCHER ON CLUB WAS CHOICE OF MILLER HUGGINS

Contract Will Run for one Year; Art Fletcher Refused to Take Job

BY HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK — (AP) — Unconditionally released by the club two years ago, Bob Shawkey, ex-salvor, has been named manager of the New York Yankees, leaderless since the death of three weeks ago of Miller J. Huggins.

A great right-handed pitcher in his day, coach of the Yankees during the last season, Shawkey never has had a managerial experience. His contract is for one year.

Shawkey's selection surprised the experts who had expected that Arthur Fletcher, Yankee coach, or Bob Connery, president of the St. Paul club of the American association, would be named to the post.

"I do not want to manage the Yankees or any other club," Fletcher said when the offer was made. "If the club wishes me to continue as coach I will be satisfied."

The offer then was made and accepted by Shawkey.

Colonel Jacob Rubbert, club president, said the new manager had been solely on the basis of advice given by Huggins five years ago. Ruppert and Huggins had discussed possible successors to the "Mite Manager" in the event of his retirement or disability. Huggins recommended Fletcher first and Shawkey second.

Shawkey was born in Brookfield, Pa., Dec. 4, 1890. He began his professional baseball career with the Harrisburg club of the old Tri-State league in 1911, came up to the Philadelphia Athletics the next year but was optioned to Baltimore for that year and most of the next. He rejoined the A's in 1913 and then was traded to the New York Yankees in 1915 for Jack Warhop, E. Cottrell and a sizeable amount of cash.

He remained with the Yankees through the season of 1927, pitching in five world's series, one in 1914, with the Athletics and four with the Yankees. He was unconditionally released in November, 1927, and went to the Montreal club of the International league as a pitcher and coach. He came back to the Yankees as coach at the start of the season just closed.

TOMMY GROGAN MEETS VINCENTINI AT OMAHA

Omaha, Neb. — (AP) — Tommy Grogan, Omaha boxer, who was recently suspended by the Wisconsin athletic commission for fouling an opponent at Milwaukee, is billed to meet Luis Vincentini, New York lightweight, in the main bout of an Omaha Athletic club fight program next Friday night. The Vincentini bout was signed before Grogan's suspension and therefore is not affected by national boxing commission rules.

STATE FOOTBALL GAMES

U. of Wis., vs. U. of Notre Dame, Chicago.
U. of Ill. "B" at U. of Wis. "B."
Superior Techs at River Falls Techs.
Beloit at Lawrence.

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin football teams are expected to play before more spectators in games at this week-end than ever before in state football history. More than 100,000 persons will see the two state top-notchers in action, 20,000 when Marquette plays its homecoming game in Milwaukee Friday night against Iowa State college and upwards from 80,000 when the University of Wisconsin meets Notre Dame at Soldier's Field, Chicago, Saturday.

Not only will attendance be at a high point in the state, but Wisconsin will be the center of its first night football game. This will be the Marquette-Iowa State clash.

From attendance, at least, the Badger-Rambler set-to at Chicago will be a dramatic affair. Nearly 20,000 tickets for the contest have been sold in Madison, assuring a large Wisconsin contingent and although the Badgers mercilessly lashed Rockne's Ramblers last year, they will go into the game as underdogs because of their defeat by Northwestern last Saturday. Moreover, Notre Dame has Tom Lieb as assistant coach and Lieb, former Wisconsin line coach, knows the Badger football style so well that he is expected to mould a "great" defense against the Big Ten attack.

The Big Four of the Wisconsin state colleges will go into action Saturday. Topping the list is Ripon, who goes to engage the University of Chicago. A year ago the Redmen upset Stagg's Maroons, 12 to 0 and this season may repeat. While Chicago is considerably stronger, Coach Carl Doehling's fighting Ripon eleven also has increased power and showed a great attack in easily downing Cornell college, Mt. Vernon, Ia., 33 to 0, last week. The state rivalry will open with Beloit visiting Lawrence. The last year's contest was 6 to 7 in favor of the state line colleges and a close battle is expected again. Carroll of Waukesha, the other member of the group, goes to Lake Forest, Ill., to meet the college there.

La Crosse Teachers, a pedagogical conference favorite, will get its biggest test of the season Saturday when Tubby Keeler's team meets Oshkosh. If the La Crosse eleven survives this battle it will be in line for a claim on the championship. Superior Teachers, co-champions of the circuit, meets River Falls in the Falls homecoming game while Whitewater travels up to Watertown to play Northwestern in a non-conference tilt.

While their big brothers are opposing Notre Dame, the Wisconsin "B" team will be host to the University of Illinois reserves in a game at Madison Saturday. Last year the Orange and Blue gave the Badger sub-varsity its only defeat of the season.

SLATER STICKS TO GRID
Duke Slater, giant negro tackle who gained fame on the University of Iowa eleven, is still playing football. Slater began 16 years ago in high school and after leaving Iowa he stepped into the professional grid game. He's a lawyer in the off seasons.

KNOT-HOLE GANG BEING ORGANIZED FOR LAWRENCE GAME

The most rabid boosters to support the Lawrence college football team, from the standpoint of noise, will be recruited from the "knot hole gang," which is to attend Viking home games in a body during the present season. Tickets for admission to these home games are being distributed from the boys division of the Appleton Y. M. C. A., according to division officials, and several hundred pasteboards have already been claimed.

"I am strong for Lawrence! I want to see Lawrence win, but will be a good sport whether she wins or loses!" is the inscription on the tickets, which are being distributed free of charge to all interested youngsters.

The "knot hole gang" will congregate at the John's entrance to the Whitefield at 1:45 o'clock Saturday, preparatory to rushing the bleachers for their seats on the sidelines of the Beloit-Viking battle.

NORTHWESTERN AND MINNESOTA HOLD BIG TEN INTEREST

Iowa Must Beat Illinois to Remain in Running for Conference Title

CHICAGO—(AP)—Their records soiled by defeat in their inaugural games of the Big Ten football season, Michigan and Iowa tomorrow will fight to retain what remains of their chances for the 1929 championship.

Before the opening games last week one defeat was regarded as sufficient to eliminate a team from consideration in the title race, but the downfall of the four favorites on last Saturday's program, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana, left them with at least an outside hope of another chance.

Iowa's task will be to upset Illinois in the latter's campaign for its third straight Big Ten title.

Although the 1927-28 champion Illinois eleven will be making its 1929 bow in conference competition at Iowa City, the Minnesota invasion of Northwestern has assumed the place of first importance on the Big Ten card for Saturday. Northwestern which won a surprising, but earned victory over Wisconsin last week, will face the job of testing Minnesota's annual threat.

The Wildcats' prospect for victory, dimmed early by the loss of Hank Bruder through injury in the Wisconsin triumph, and Coach Dick Hanley's illness, was improved yesterday when the coach appeared to direct practice, and the announcement that Oswald Baxter, a brilliant halfback candidate, probably would be eligible by Saturday.

Indiana, another upset victim last week, will attempt to duplicate Wisconsin's triumph over Colgate, invader from the east. The Hoosiers, with the memory of the Chicago defeat to erase, will be up against anything but a pushover in Andy Kerr's team which hopes to gain the edge in its dealing with western opponents this season. Colgate bowed to Wisconsin two weeks ago, but came

BADGERS SNARLING MAD AS THEY END PRACTICE FOR IRISH

Thisty Still Indicates He'll Start Two New Tackles
Saturday

BY STANLEY E. KALISH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Madison—(AP)—A determined Wisconsin squad that will enter a football game as underdogs for the first time since the Iowa game last year, left today for Chicago to meet Notre Dame at Soldier Field Saturday.

The Badgers, a party of 36 players besides coaches, managers and trainers, appeared to be snarling mad in their final workout Thursday night before the trip. When they met the Ramblers before nearly 100,000 spectators they will not be the favorite.

Thursday night's workout was as soft as down compared to the grueling scrimmages earlier in the week. The Badgers went through nothing more strenuous than dummy scrimmage, both offensive and defensive.

Saturday's spectacle probably will see a revamped line go into action, although the old dependables—Behr, Lusby, Facetti and Hal Rebholz, will be the backs. Coach Thistlethwaite seems to be definite in shunting Lubratovich and Ketealar to the second team, and as definite in using White and Hal Smith, both of whom have returned to form after injuries, at the first team tackle posts.

Thistlethwaite also had two shifty guards with the first eleven Thursday. They were Baer and Jack Linden, who won his letter at the post last season, but has performed at halfback and fullback this fall.

The Wisconsin squad, which is to take a light workout in Chicago today, numbers:

Fullbacks—H. Rebholz, Gnabahn and Maurer.

Halfbacks—Lusby, H. Rebholz, Oman, Davidson, Facetti, Bach and Dunaway.

Quarterbacks—Behr, Graebner and Sheehan.

Ends—Jensen, L. Smith, Gentebeln, Casey, Warren, and Short-house.

Tackles—Lubratovich, Ketealar, Witte, Shomaker, Hal Smith, and Tobias.

Guards—Capt. Parks, Liehnan, Baer, Franklin, Lindon, Hardt, and Swiderski.

Centers—Kruger, Miller, Hansen and Ahlberg.

Slavin, Last Of Bare Knuckle Fighters, Dies

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(AP)—One of the last links connecting present-day pugilism with the era of John L. Sullivan and other fighters of the bare-knuckle school has been broken with the death here of Frank Slavin.

Slavin fought as a professional for more than 20 years, fell under the spell of the Yukon during the gold stampede of 1893 and wound up the spectacular side of his career with an enlistment in the Canadian army during the world war when he was 34 years old.

He died in a hospital here yesterday after an illness of more than a year.

Born in Maitland, New South Wales, Jan. 5, 1862, Slavin took up boxing as a form of amusement while he was working in a mining camp in Australia. He won the amateur heavyweight championship and turned professional more or less by accident. In a Queensland barroom he encountered Martin Powers, a local champion, who poked fun at the amateur until Slavin offered to fight him then and there.

So great was the interest, however, that the fight was staged at a race track for a purse. Slavin beat Powers in 13 minutes, under prize ring rules.

Slavin's rise was rapid. In 1886 Martin Costello of the United States who had lasted five rounds with Sullivan, visited Australia and Slavin was picked to uphold the prestige of that country against the invader. Costello was knocked out in seven rounds. Slavin then went to Europe and still later to the United States, meeting among others, Jim Smith.

AZARELLA BEATS EDDIE ANDERSON

Johnny Ryan, Milwaukee, Knocks Out Frank Grandetta
in Sixth Round

Milwaukee—(AP)—Eddie Anderson, Chicago lightweight, failed to make a comeback in the last rounds of his fight here last night, dropping a referee's decision to Joe Azarella, idol of Milwaukee's Third ward. Anderson went into the eighth round bout at 136 1-4 and Azarella at 137.

Anderson waited until the third round to try his punching ability with his opponent only to be constantly bothered by Azarella's left. In the fourth Anderson began an fighting game which he hoped would weaken Azarella for the last rounds but the Third warder weathered the blows and came back strong with a rain of swings to the face.

In the other half of the double windup, Johnny Ryan of Milwaukee knocked out Frank Grandetta of Chicago in the sixth round of their eight round bout. Ryan weighed 122 1-4; Grandetta, 121.

Other results: Franklin Cheek, Milwaukee, 124 1-2, shaded George Stokes, Chicago, 122 3-4 in four rounds; Frankie Burns, Milwaukee, 146 1-2 won a decision over Joe Maglio, Milwaukee, 148; Johnny Megna, Milwaukee, 115, knocked out Harry Bauer, Oshkosh, 119 1-2 in the first round.

THROUGH THE KEYHOLE
SOMERFIELD'S discovery that Laxton was a detective was no great surprise to me. "That's been worrying me ever since he came," I told Somerfield, although my suspicions of the man's real profession were more recent. "Then the people at the British museum," Somerfield asked, "how—"

"Oh, that's quite easy. Laxton must have been on the watch for news of Pell. As soon as Pell's name appeared in The Times that day, when it said I was taking a drawing of the new fresco to the museum, Laxton or his superiors must have fired up the trip with the museum people. Sunday night, when he took me down to the cloisters, policeman was written all over him."

"Of course, he was after Pell. It looked like that. But why?"

"At least three people could tell us that, Grenofen."

"Yes, I know," said I. "But I won't ask Veronica. I don't think it would be fair to ask Mrs. Seabroke. And if I asked old Seabroke—well, you can easily guess."

Somerfield nodded. "It's awkward," said he. "But, you know, it may have to be done. If the professor gets wise to what happened last night, he won't have any mighty compunctions about asking. Will you, now? Spiriting away the man he was after for the murder of Pell! Have you realized it?"

By perception of reality was beggled by Veronica.

Somerfield, looking on from outside, was able to precipitate the confusion a little. He had an analytical mind. All these disconnections, he said, had to be linked up somehow, and the only link he could see was Laxton.

Old Fotherbury's excavations had brought Pell down to Blackwater. Then, there was a get-away by a convict. The convict arrived at Blackwater, and on his heels—Laxton.

Pell was murdered in the act of revealing a ghost and when we look for the ghost we find—Laxton.

"Something in the background," said Somerfield, "between the Seabrokes, Pell and the convict. Something that even Laxton can't see, for the Seabrokes into the picture yet. Therefore, whatever his knowledge, it begins later than the Seabrokes."

"No doubt about it," said I. "Laxton begins with some connection between Pell and the convict. The Seabrokes begin much further back. You remember that, immediately before Laxton came to Blackwater, he'd been in Devonshire. You remember the unexplained absence of Veronica from London that Saturday, and Pell's absence at the same time. You read that a woman and a car as well as a male accomplice were concerned in the escape. Think of Sunday night: Veronica's strange return; my encounter in Woodcot Lane; Laxton's queer conduct; Laxton's knowledge that some fellow would be prowling about Newplace that night—it all shows Laxton had touch with something that was likely to happen."

"I've been wondering," Somerfield mused, "whether Laxton had any inkling of a possible shooting match and was trying to stop it. By the way, Grenofen, Laxton's not come out as a policeman yet. Why? He's still running the antiquarian stunt."

"Is he? Seen him lately?" I asked.

"Yes," said Somerfield. "This afternoon I met him coming away from Newplace—in a dirty mess, earth all over his boots and clothes. Just taking leave of Marling and the cub. Said he'd been exploring with them. He walked along with me as far as the Lord Nelson. Fact is, Grenofen that's what made me come on to see you."

"Did he say anything about me then?" I asked.

"Yes. Asked if you were home from Hollar Bay. Whether I'd met your cousin. Whether you were specially friendly with Fotherbury. He's got his eye on you, Grenofen. But that wasn't the most remarkable thing."

"His harried back to what happened in the library the afternoon Pell was killed. Then he asked me who I saw you or anybody else take a book out of the shelves that afternoon."

"He said Fotherbury had missed a book. It was in the library Friday, Tuesday, it couldn't be found. And Mr. Fotherbury wanted it badly."

"What book?" I asked.

"An old illuminated book, with a manuscript history of the abbey. Laxton said he wouldn't be surprised if it was what had put Fotherbury on to his excavations."

"Nobody touched a book that day, so far as I remember."

"I didn't see anybody touch a book. But it's not the loss that interests me—it's the fact that Laxton's so curious about it."

"Yes, that's rather queer," I admitted.

"I'd give almost a dollar to know whether Pell was in the library on Friday and whether Marling knew he'd been there."

"Marling?"

"Well—think of Marling a minute. Hated Pell. Why? Suspected him. Think of Marling in the cloisters Sunday night. Then Monday afternoon—you couldn't miss Marling's face when Pell went for him. It was Marling who was going to see the ghost, if you remember. If Pell had taken the book, and Marling knew it, suppose the book contained the instructions for conjuring up the ghost, Grenofen?"

"I can't see how a book in Newplace library could have anything to do with conjuring a ghost out of a convict prison," said I.

"Did it ever occur to you that Pell might have been shot by accident?" Somerfield put the question almost casually. It made me sit up.

"You mean—why, Somerfield, you can only mean one thing! That—"

"That the shot was meant for somebody else. In fact, it's perfectly clear, Grenofen. Did you look through the keyhole? A man who was going to fire through the keyhole couldn't possibly have aimed at Pell, who wasn't in the line of fire except for one instant—"

"Of course! I hadn't thought of it. The man who fired the shot was blind at the time; he couldn't fire and see the target."

"Yes, and only one man could have been shot through the keyhole—the one who sat in the direct line of fire."

"And he was—"

An unique theory further darkens the mystery of Pell's death. Continue the story tomorrow.

KAUKAUNA ELEVEN READY FOR NEENAH

Jorgenson Team Determined to Grab First Victory from Orange, Black

Kaukauna—Coach Paul E. Little's Kaukauna high school team will play Neenah high school at the local ball park at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. Kaukauna has always defeated Neenah on the gridiron in the past, but the Neenah huskies appear to have at least an even chance of winning Saturday.

Neenah has won and lost one conference game in the Northeastern Interscholastic league while Kaukauna has lost one. Neenah, which had not won a game in two years, has shown a complete reversal of form this year.

The Kaukauna team shows more strength as the season advances but the inexperience of the team has cost the school three games so far. In a game against Sturgeon Bay last week the team succeeded in making two touchdowns. The passing attack of the team looked good and may be the chief threat against Neenah.

The lineup for the orange and black is not certain as the coach has been making a number of changes this week. Probable lineup: VanLieshout and Collins, ends; Nushardt and VanDyke, tackles; Jirikovic and Klarer, guards; M. VanLieshout, center; Grogan or Thoms, quarterback; Driessen and Bay, halfbacks and McCormick, fullback.

CONDEMN FIVE PUMPS AS UNFIT FOR USE

Kaukauna—Five automatic pumps were condemned as unfit for use and another was condemned for repairs by Harold Frank, city sealer of weights and measures, in the last three months. Twenty-seven pumps were tested and 21 were sealed. Six scales were adjusted out of the 61 tested. Eighty-five weights were sealed.

GOLF CLUB MEMBERS PLAN ANOTHER WORKDAY

Kaukauna—Members of the Kaukauna Golf club will gather at the new course Sunday morning to take part in another clean-up session. Stumps will be blasted. Last Sunday 30 were blasted out and cleaned away. Plowing probably will be completed this week.

PLAY CHARACTERS TO REHEARSE TONIGHT

Kaukauna—Characters in the play "Dust of the Earth" will rehearse at the Lutheran school auditorium Friday evening. The Dramatic club, which is presenting the play, will meet at 7:30 Tuesday evening. The play will be given about the middle of November.

JOHN SARGENT'S HOBBY IS REPAIRING CLOCKS

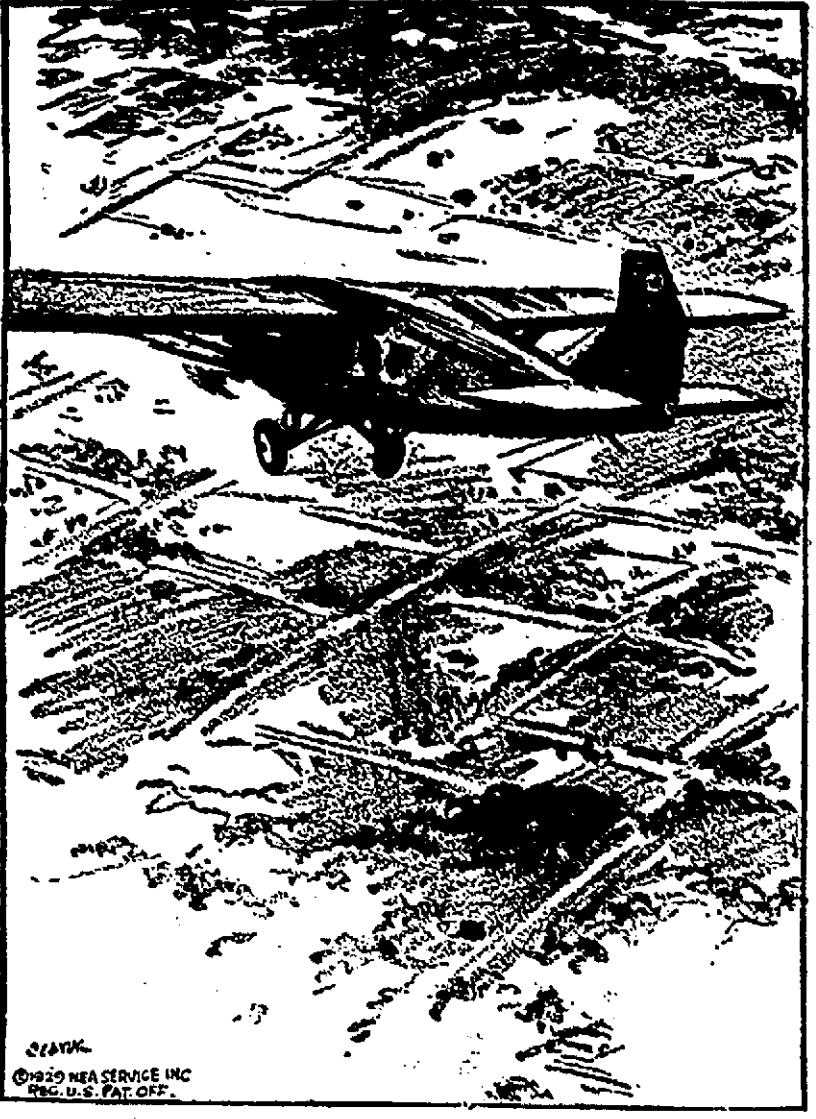

Ludlow, Wt.—(AP)—Back in the environment of his home town, John Garibaldi Sargent, attorney general of the United States under President Coolidge, is spending many hours at his old hobby of collecting and repairing clocks.

The rarer and older a clock is, the better he likes it and his home is filled with old timepieces, forming a collection that is noted nationally. And all of his old clocks are running.

London is to have a new hotel costing $6,250,000.

RUMANIAN LAW WILL ENFORCE BETROTHALS

Bucharest—(AP)—Gr. Junian, minister of justice, has drawn up a bill on marriage and divorce which will, for the first time in this country, give legal standing to betrothal vows.

If the man breaks off an engagement without giving sufficient reason, he will make himself liable in damages to either the girl or her family. Under certain circumstances, all presents must be returned.

In the divorce section, the bill provides that a divorcee may retain the name of her spouse until she re-enters the married state. But she must hyphenate it with her maiden name.

Desertion of the home is made punishable by fines of from $6 to $60. In aggravated cases, a jail sentence may also be imposed.

BONDS AGAIN SHOW POWER AFTER LONG PERIOD OF DECLINE

Difference in Price Between Stocks and Bonds Escaped Notice

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press

New York—A feature of the present situation which has been overlooked is the relation between current price movements in the stock market and those in the bond market. It has not escaped notice, of course, that bonds, meaning thereby issues bought for income and not because they carry stock privileges of one kind or another, have been hardening after their long period of decline.

The recovery in bonds has been correctly ascribed to the easier trend in money but that is not the whole story. Funds which have been going into stocks in the expectation of large profits are now being diverted into fixed interest bearing securities. That also is a natural sequel of events.

NEW INFLUENCE

There is still another influence at work, however, and that is organized support of the bond market by interests who wish to establish a better selling level for new offerings, particularly foreign descriptions. Under conditions that have been prevailing for the last year or two it was impossible to distribute a foreign bond unless it had a speculative flavor. Whether or not this campaign will succeed remains to be seen but at least it has been initiated at a propitious time.

As to the outlook for the stock market, that is a subject on which one may obtain almost any view. Public utilities have few friends simply because the public attitude toward this class of stocks has been entirely changed. They have long been selling at a higher capitalization of earning power than any other group and at last this is being realized by speculators as well as investors.

Then too the utilities, or some of them at least, have broken through the resistance points established in the break of the first week in the month. This move can be said about many high priced industrial which have been leaders in the long bull market.

Antwerp, once in the swirl of the world war conflict, has become no less an active center in peace time. It is rapidly developing as a distributing center.

NEW ORLEANS STREET CAR STRIKE UNSETTLED

New Orleans—The local street car situation still is in a state of unrest. The car men have voted to accept a settlement along the lines outlined by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor provided the agreement with regard to taking back old men is submitted to arbitration. The company declares there is nothing to arbitrate. The point is whether the old men will be taken back at once in a body or as needed by the company. The company says it will take them back only as fast as needed. A restricted schedule of cars is being maintained.

PAJAMA CLAD PERSONS ROUTED IN BUDAPEST

Budapest, Hungary—(AP)—Pajamas as all-day dress have not found favor in Budapest, where an effort to transform the bathing place on Margaret Island into an imitation of Lido met with such disapproval as to bring the police to the scene. The Committee of Public Works had permitted the management of the island to allow the bathers, as an experiment, to wander along the shady paths of the island in pajamas. But ordinary visitors were horrified—struck—for the Hungarian is everything that is correct in matters of dress—and telephoned the police, who sent the loosely clothed strollers back to the beach.
